U. S. REQUESTS 1-SIDE PARKING ON W. FOURTH

Asks City to Prohibit Cars on One Side to Remove Traffic Hazard.

TAKES IN MOST OF STREET

Plan Would Limit Parking From Mulberry West to City Limits.

While Mayor W. J. Locke conferred today with a state highway department representative on a proposal to widen West Fourth street six feet from Mulberry street to Weldon avenue, the federal bureau of highways requested the city to limit parking to one side of the street from Mulberry street to the western city limits.

In a letter to the mayor, the federal bureau pointed out that because of the present width of the street and the amount of traffic it carries as a federal highway, parking on both sides creates a hazard.

Mayor Locke said the request would be submitted to council for action.

The major conferred with A. H. Moellenkamp, assistant engineer in the Ashland district of the state highway department, on the plan to widen West Fourth street from 34 feet to 40 feet. It was expected, however, that the plans will have to be submitted to the district and state offices of the highway department and to city council for approval.

Mayor Locke emphasized that it would be more convenient to widen the heavily travelled street while it is being rebuilt this year.

While the city was wrestling with the West Fourth street problem, Richland county commissioners today authorized the establishment of a new county road to connect routes 30N and 30S just west of the Gates airport in Springfield township.

The proposed road, about seven-tenths of a mile long, will cost approximately $1,200 to build, County Engineer Howard Sword said.

He said bids will be requested soon on material for the road and work probably will start in August. The connecting road was sought by Paul Gages, manager of the airport, and 11 other property owners in the community. There were no objections to the plan.

ISTANBUL, Turkey — (UP) — The fall of the Turkish cabinet because of the pro-British sympathies of Premier Refik Saydam and Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu was predicted today by informed quarters.

Hoover Indicates He Would Run For President Against New Deal

Stirs Delegates By FDR Attack

Gov. Stassen Throws Minnesota Vote To Willkie; First Nominating Speech Goes to Dewey.

By W. B. RAGSDALE

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Herbert Hoover left himself available for a possible presidential nomination today by declining to say whether he would accept the Republican leadership if it were offered by the 1940 national convention.

Following up his convention plea of last night for the party to "save America for free men," the former president held a press conference three hours before the afternoon session of the convention was scheduled to open and receive a 3,000-word platform draft from its resolution committee and make a start on the arduous task of nominating candidates.

While Hoover talked to reporters, Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, the convention keynoter, told his state delegation that his vote would be cast for Wendell Willkie. The Minnesota group has 22 votes. It had been considered friendly to Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan.

Simultaneously, an Alabama caucus voted to yield the state's first position in the convention roll call to New York for the nomination of Thomas E. Dewey.

This procedure would put the name of the 38-year-old district attorney before the delegates prior to those of Willkie, and Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, two of his major rivals.

Hoover said that he was not seeking public office. But he said also there should be no "interference" with the selection of a nominee in a free and open manner.

Asked directly whether he would accept the nomination, Hoover declined to say. But the only living ex-president declared that he would support the 1940 nominee—whoever that might be.

A foreign policy dispute in the resolutions committee, not settled until late last night, threw the convention behind schedule, and gave the sharply contesting candidates a chance to continue their "home work" with 1,000 delegates.

For the moment, though, the delegates were intent upon Mr. Hoover when he took the platform last night. They shouted, blew whistles and marched up and down the aisles waving banners for eight and a half minutes after he had asked the question:

"Republicans, are you willing to go into this fight?"

He was referring to a fight to save America from the "suicide road" down which he said the New Deal was taking the nation—the same "suicide road," he declared, that had led to loss of liberty and disaster in Europe.

The former president, speaking more than an hour, analyzed his view of what was wrong with President Roosevelt's policies.

Upon those policies he poured sarcasm and ridicule and such epithets as "stabilizing depression," "the flabbiness of the New Deal," and totalitarian liberals."

As he finished, he stood on the platform and waved to the delegates while they cheered. Some of those in the convention hall suggested that the tone of his voice had been that of a man willing to take on the Democrats next fall.

Certainly, plenty of former Hoover lieutenants were strewn through the audience. More than one of those who hauled state standards out of their floor sockets and went yelling up the aisles dated back to the pre-Roosevelt days in Washington.

But the demonstration died away. Chairman Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts spanked it

MOVES OF FLEET REMAIN SECRET

Officials Silent on U. S. Naval Maneuvers; Canal Zone and Asia Waters Considered.

WASHINGTON — As Japanese political threats to assume a "protectorate" over French and Dutch possessions in the far east were intensified today, the U. S. battle fleet was reported enroute from Hawaii to an unknown destination.

What connection there is between these two facts—of any—was a matter of the deepest official secrecy. For the first time in the memory of contemporary capital observers, the White House, state department and navy department refused to give the slightest indication of the destination or purpose of a major fleet movement.

All factual information came from Hawaii, were residents saw the mighty floating fortresses of the battle fleet moving majestically out to sea. From their easterly direction it was assumed there that they were going either to their

Quiz 2 In Beating And Robbery of Lexington Woman

Deputy sheriffs and police today questioned and fingerprinted two transients brought here from Lexington in their search for the man who beat and robbed Mrs. Rose Kell, 68, of Lexington, as she lay in her bed early yesterday.

Sheriff E. P. Long said he and his deputies would question every transient and "floater" in Lexington, since the officers have only meager clues with which to work. He said they had learned nothing of value from the men questioned so far.

Mrs. Kell, widow of M. A. Kell, Lexington hardware dealer for many years, was beaten on the head and hands by an attacker who crept into the large house where she slept alone. One of the blows fractured a finger on her right hand. She was not believed seriously hurt.

The assailant, who apparently thought she had a large sum of money in the house, took a purse containing about $10. After cutting radio and telephone wires, he entered through a cellar window.

DISPUTE: Pepper Walks Out Of Party Platform Meeting

(By United Press)

PHILADELPHIA—New Republican platform difficulties arose today and Chairman George Wharton Pepper walked out of the drafting committee room after fresh dispute over the language of the G. O. P. foreign policy plank.

Pepper, former senator from Pennsylvania, said he did not feel that he could be of any further use to the drafters and that he was "going back to my law office."

It was understood that Pepper was angered when the committee again revised the language of the foreign policy plank after he had believed final agreement had been reached last night.

Pepper's ire was believed to have been drawn by the action of the strong isolationist group on the committee. It was reported that the isolationists had written into the plank a specific declaration against ever again "spilling the blood of American youth on foreign soil." Reports also circulated that the isolationists were insisting that the plank avoid any strong stand against "aggression."

Pepper has been a consistent advocate of a strong statement of U. S. interest in foreign matters. After his withdrawal the drafting committee continued its work without him.

In addition to the foreign policy row there was reported to be dispute over the social security plank.

It was believed that the sharp split within the drafting committee increased the possibility of a floor fight over the foreign policy plank.

Isolationists won a major victory over G. O. P. supporters of all aid

CAMPAIGN: Taft Supporters Launch Presidential Drive

By CARL TURNER
(INS Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA—Ohio delegates and national convention visitors today began an "infiltration drive" to bring the Republican presidential nomination to their favorite son, U. S. Senator Robert A. Taft.

Led by Gov. John W. Bricker, chairman of the delegation of 52, and Congressman George H. Bender, of Cleveland, official "cheer leader" of the Taft forces, hundreds of Buckeye state convention visitors contacted everyone within reach wearing a badge of a delegate from another state.

The drive was launched after Senator Taft, addressing a giant Ohio pep rally, told his supporters that "a very large number of delegates have not yet made up their minds how they will vote."

"There are also a great many others who appear to make up their minds every day," Taft added.

His campaign managers expressed confidence the Ohioan will be nominated on an early ballot, and talk of Thomas E. Dewey joining the ticket as vice presidential nominee in an effort to block off Wendell L. Willkie pervaded Taft headquarters.

As time for balloting neared a canvass revealed that if Gov. Arthur H. James fails to gain after the first ballot and Willkie and Dewey fail to win the nomination,

As Hoover Addressed G. O. P.

Former President Herbert Hoover raises his hand, above, in acknowledgement of the 20-minute ovation that greeted his introduction to speak at the second night session of the Republican national convention in Philadelphia. Hoover asserted that "it is not the province of the president of the United States to create hate" and outlined a seven-point program of "stern tasks" to prepare the nation on defense and economic fronts.

SNOW, MAYBE?

It Begins to Look Like That's What's In Store for Fourth.

With the temperature dropping to 47 during the night and a cold wind blowing, the old saw about "snow on the Fourth of July" may not be so funny this year.

There is no let-up in sight from either the unseasonal temperature or the rains. Continued showers, cloudy skies and cool weather is forecast for today and tomorrow.

An unusual phase of the freak weather is that while Mansfield's thermometers rose to 67 this noon, Cincinnati, 175 miles south, was shivering under a 54-degree temperature. The average temperature for this locality for the past 24 hours was 60.5, nine degrees lower than the average for the past 15 years.

LINCOLN'S WISH UP TO AMERICA

That's Message of Lecturer, Mansfield Native, Talking On World Crisis.

By JANE WILLIAMS

If the words of Lincoln at Gettysburg—"that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth"—are to be upheld in this changing world, it will be up to Americans to uphold them, Herbert F. Fraser, professor of economics at Swarthwore college, told an audience of 200 last night at First Congregational church.

Fraser, a former Mansfield man who is visiting relatives here, spoke under the auspices of the Women's Association of the church, on the subject of "America and The World Crisis."

He said there can be no such thing as isolation for the Americas as there might have been 25 years ago; that intellectually the Americas are bound to the European states, and that radio and aviation have brought Europe and America within a few hours of each other.

"It took Thomas Jefferson two months to get word to his emissaries in Europe," he reminded his audience, "but today it takes the president only long enough to reach for the telephone."

The Monroe Doctrine, he said, embodied two principles: Self defense and our idealistic interest in democracy and promotion of lib-

City's Sidewalk Program Scrapped, WPA Rejects It

Mansfield's WPA sidewalk program proposed to improve 50,000 square feet of sidewalks was definitely rejected today by WPA officials, according to Mayor W. J. Locke.

Locke said he had been notified today that WPA would not appropriate funds for the project because of the lack of men for available WPA projects in the city and because WPA funds are being expended now for projects of more general benefit to communities.

Locke said that considerable work had already been done by the city in acquiring the consent of property owners who were to pay a part of the cost of materials, and that consent had been obtained for more than 30,000 square feet of the work.

The entire project will be scrapped for the present, he said.

Land Soldiers On Continent, Fight Germans

Nazi and English Fliers Swap Punches Across Channel; Fate of French Fleet Remains Subject for Speculation.

(By Associated Press)

Daring raids by British naval and military landing parties on German-held "enemy coastline"—apparently to seize prisoners for information on Nazi plans to invade the British Isles—were reported by the British ministry of information today.

The raids were described as "reconnaisances"—probably scouting parties—and there was no immediate indication that Britain planned to send another expeditionary force to resume the fight on the continent.

"Landings were effected at a number of points," the ministry said, "and contact was made with German troops.

"Casualties were inflicted and some enemy dead fell into our hands. Much useful information was obtained."

In the armistice-enforced lull in land fighting, Germany and Britain swapped punches across the channel in air raids that left four Germans dead and at least six British civilians killed and six wounded.

Nazi warplanes attacked between midnight and dawn for the fifth time in eight days, raining bombs from the south coast of England to Scotland.

At least five raiders were downed by anti-aircraft fire and fighter planes.

Germans meanwhile indicated that the final terms on which Adolf Hitler expects to reorganize Europe will not be disclosed until his war with England is ended. They said armistice terms imposed on France were designed merely to meet war conditions and did not foreshadow the nature of the final peace settlement.

While England waited for Germany to strike with her full power, the fate of the French fleet, which the Bordeaux government agreed to surrender under the armistices with Germany and Italy, remained a major subject for speculation.

Tricolor flags flapped at half mast on French warships with the British in Alexandria yesterday—but the French made no move to sail back to France to surrender.

Nor did all France's empire kneel beside her in defeat.

From North Africa came a declaration that crack Moroccan troops would defend every inch of North African territory.

From Berlin and Rome were announced the full provisions of the armistice pacts with France—both pacts shaped to the same pattern:

Immediate return and internment of the French warfleet, grounding of all planes, silencing of wireless, disarmament of fighting forces, cessation of all aid to Britain, termination of all resistance to Germany and Italy in France or her territories, surrender of all war stores and equipment.

In addition Germany is occupying more than half of France, including the entire Atlantic coast to Spain.

Italy occupies the one-to-five mile fringe of southeastern France her troops took in two weeks of skirmishing. She also takes all rights to Jibuti, the sea outlet for the only rail line to Addis Ababa in Ethiopia; is guaranteed disarmament of French naval bases, and demilitarization of zones 30 to 150 miles wide between France and Italy and between French and Italian holdings in Africa.

Spanish sources understood that Premier Petain would take his French government from Bordeaux to Clermont-Ferrand, nearly 200 miles south of Paris and 55 miles from the nearest German-occupied territory.

Under the armistice the government could if it desired, return to Paris, to which the civilian population is plodding back.

The war had significant echoes in Asia. The Tokyo newspaper Asahi reported Japan soon would issue a sweeping pronouncement

CONTROL: Japan Seeks Power Over Far Eastern Territory

(By International News Service)

TOKYO — Japanese forces in southwest China have launched a drive to control the vital supply routes between French Indo-China and China itself, it was revealed today.

While the foreign office denied dispatch of "observers" to the French colony constituted a move to secure a Japanese protectorate over the Netherlands East Indies, Domei (official Japanese news agency) reported the troop movements.

Field dispatches from the Nanning sector of Kwansi province stated Japanese vanguards already have reached Lungchow.

Lungchow which is about 30 miles from the frontier "is the most important traffic center," the news agency said.

At the same time, the Japanese cabinet established, "Monroe doctrine in the Far East.

Changes in Japan's foreign policy in the face of the European war situation were submitted to the cabinet, after which the "Monroe Doctrine" policy was decided upon. This will include pushing the China "incident" to a rapid conclusion; non-involvement of Japan in the European conflict and establishment of Japan as the "stabilizing force" in East Asia.

Japan made it clear that she will not permit intervention of any foreign powers in Indo-China or the Dutch East Indies. Her strengthened policy, it was stated, is not inclined in favor of the Rome-Berlin axis partners.

Japan refuses to help either side

ASSAULT: Italy and Germany Concentrate Against Britain

(By International News Service)

ROME—Soldiers of Fascist Italy today began taking over positions of strategic importance in French Mediterranean and African territories, as Rome and Berlin moved swiftly to concentrate their joint power in a tremendous assault against England, their sole remaining adversary.

As provided for by the Italo-French armistice agreement, officially revealed last night, Italian troops today began taking over control of Djibouti, key port of French Somaliland, as well as the vital Djibouti-Addis Ababa railway.

Simultaneously, Italy was placed in positions of tactical importance which threatened effectively to bottle up the British fleets and naval bases in the Mediterranean, stopping English maritime traffic to India and the Far East by way of the short route via the Gibraltar-Mediterranean-Suez-Red Sea route.

Thus Italy today stands in position to cripple the British empire while Chancellor Hitler hurls the might of Nazi Germany directly against British Isles.

Terms of the Franco-Italian truce closely paralleled those of the Franco-German armistice. Details of both were revealed last night in Berlin and Rome.

Third U. S. Cruiser Sent to South American Ports

LOCATION OF BATTLE FLEET NOT REVEALED

'Friendly Visit' of Warship To Chile Displays Flag At Opportune Time.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The United States navy today revealed a third cruiser has been dispatched to South American ports, while intensive speculation continued over the whereabouts of the main U. S. battle fleet.

The main fleet left Hawaii two days ago.

While its whereabouts remained a mystery, an official announcement by the navy said that the 10,000 ton cruiser Phoenix was on its way on a "friendly visit" to Valparaiso, Chile. The Phoenix is now in the Pacific.

The navy in recent weeks sent two other cruisers to the east coast of South America. The Wichita is now at Rio De Janiero while the Quincy is at Montevideo, Uruguay.

Although the Latin American cruises are officially described as "goodwill visits," the navy privately concedes that the show of the American flag in the areas at this time was desirable, particularly in view of reported Nazi fifth column activities. It was indicated that the three ships would stay in Latin-American waters longer than is usual for friendly visits. In navy quarters it was disclosed that neither the Wichita nor the Quincy have been ordered to return to American fleet bases giving rise to the possibility that these ships are in the southern area on an indefinite assignment.

There was no indication as to the personnel aboard the three cruisers. Their normal complement including marines is estimated at approximately 500 officers and men each.

Declares Britain Wants Airplanes, And 'Damn Quick'

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Captain E. B. McMaster, Vancouver, B. C., told the convention of the United Commercial Travelers today that "the British empire wants American planes and munitions and wants them damn quick."

"If we don't get enough planes to stop the Nazis they will blow the British Isles into the sea," he said.

If Germany captures the British Isles, Capt. McMaster predicted the British government headquarters would be moved to Canada.

"If it comes to that," he added, "then it's your war. Canada hasn't forgotten President Roosevelt's speech of two years ago."

McMaster is a captain in the Canadian reserve corps.

PARK AVENUE WEST, GLENBECK LANE SEWER LINES APPROVED

Failure to obtain WPA assistance on the construction of a sanitary sewer on Park avenue west and Glenbeck lane, led city council last night to authorize the improvement on a contract basis.

Council passed an ordinance authorizing Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton to call for bids on the project that was proposed as a work-relief project several months ago.

Plans call for construction of a 10-inch sewer on Park avenue west 1,100 feet from Linden road and the extension of an eight-inch sewer on Glenbeck lane.

Legislation provides for the issuance of $3,700 in notes in anticipation of the collection of assessments to cover the property owners share of the cost. The city share is estimated at $71.

C. C. Beck, 893 Park avenue west, addressing council, urged immediate action, terming the condition in the vicinity "unsanitary." He said the health department has repeatedly called attention to the need of the sewer construction on the street.

The project had been drafted as a WPA job early this year, but recent lay-offs by the government agency and transfer of the major portion of workers to the West Fourth street paving project, caused a delay in obtaining WPA assistance.

PROPERTY OWNERS SEEKING ONE SIDE PARKING ON HELEN AVENUE

City council's traffic committee, studying sweeping changes in Mansfield's traffic regulations, had under consideration today a request from Helen avenue property owners for extension of the parking ban to include that street.

The petition, submitted to council last night by property owners between Park avenue west and West Third street, asks that the restriction include the east side of the street only.

L. S. Wilson, 29 Helen avenue, who presented the petition, told council that it was a "hazard" to allow parking on both sides of the narrow roadway. He said that several serious accidents have been narrowly averted there.

Arthur L. Croak, of the traffic committee, informed council that the committee working with the citizens traffic committee, had under consideration changes to be made on several streets and that they would be presented to council in the near future.

SETS JUNE 30 FOR START OF CHARLES MILL FISHING SEASON

After approving an order to open fishing at the Charles Mill reservoir east of Mansfield on June 30, the Ohio Conservation and Natural Resources commission today abandoned the staggered hunting seasons and set hunting dates for 1940.

The June 30 fishing season at the Charles Mill reservoir had already been tentatively approved.

A spokesman for the commission said the staggered hunting season was abandoned mainly because of complaints from farmers who objected to the length of the season and the uncertainty about which days were open or closed to hunting.

The commission released $1,000 for the purchase of equipment to aid in teaching wildlife conservation in public schools.

The new hunting seasons and bag limits are:

Pheasant—Nov. 15-30, limit, two cocks per day, four in possession after first day.

Rabbits—Nov. 15-Jan. 1, daily limit, four; four in possession after first day.

Hungarian partridge—Nov. 15-30, daily limit, four; four in possession after first day.

Grouse—Nov. 15-30, daily limit, two; four in possession after first day.

Squirrel—Sept. 25—Oct. 10—Daily limit, four; eight in possession after first day.

Mink—Dec. 1-Jan. 15 in inland districts; Dec. 15-March 15 in Lake Erie district.

Raccoon, skunk and oppossum—Nov. 15-Jan. 15.

The commission fixed no bag limit nor season for grey fox hunting. It was undecided on regulations for the red fox.

PROBE ATTEMPT TO BURN AUTO, BLOW UP BARN

Police Find Part of Machine Burned, Charred Paper on Gasoline Tank.

Mysterious attempt to set fire to an automobile or cause an explosion in a barn owned by James M. Grau, 350 South Main street, was being investigated by police today.

Grau told police upholstering had burned from the front seat of his automobile and said an attempt had been made to set off an explosion in the automobile's gasoline tank.

Patrolmen John Gilbert and Eugene Hartnett found a book of charred matches on the floor of the automobile and part of the front seat had been burned, they said.

A piece of newspaper had been placed over the opening of the gas tank and the cap placed back on lightly to hold the paper in place, the officers said. Flames had charred the paper up to the metal cap but went out before fumes from the gasoline were ignited.

Had the flames reached under the cap the tank would have exploded, officers pointed out, blowing up the car and the barn in which it was housed. They said the plan was too carefully worked out to have been the work of children.

Grau said the car had been put in the barn about 10 p. m. Monday night and that the attempt to destroy it was not discovered until members of the family went to the barn yesterday afternoon.

Grau told officers that he knew of no reason why anyone should want to destroy his property.

DAMAGE CLAIMS, PETITIONS KEEP COUNCIL BUSY

Residents Seek Payment for Sewage Damages; Ask for Street Improvements.

City council received a flood of claims and petitions at its special meeting last night, most of which were referred to various committees for consideration.

Largest of the claims was presented by Atty. H. H. Schettler, former city solicitor, who seeks $400 damages to his home at 139 Glenwood boulevard, which he says was caused by sewage backing into the basement. It was referred to the claims committee.

Also sent to the claims committee was a bill for $16.69 presented by Lester Rain, 123 South Diamond street, claiming his automobile was damaged on West Fourth street during construction of new water lines.

Mrs. Laura J. Walters, 41 West Fourth street, submitted a claim for $29.76 damage to a plate glass window in the building owned by her. She told council the damage was caused by a loose stone thrown against the glass by a passing automobile. The claim was ordered filed.

The street committee received several petitions. Among them were:

A request for street grading by property owners on Harter avenue extension; a petition to vacate an alley at the rear of properties on Cline avenue, west of Marion avenue; a request for the grading and gravelling of Paxford place, and a request for the paving of Walker avenue between Sturges avenue and Wood street.

The sewer committee was given a petition submitted by property owners on Paxford place requesting construction of a sanitary sewer on the street between Maumee avenue and Highland avenue, and another request for construction of a sanitary sewer on Overlook road.

George Kyle, chairman of the sewer committee, asked that legislation be prepared to grant V. F. Harp, plumbing contractor, permission to construct a sanitary sewer on South park boulevard, and W. C. Mansfield, real estate broker, to build a sanitary sewer on Harter avenue extension, at their own expense.

Petitions for the construction of water lines on Overlook avenue and Paxford place were referred to the water committee.

Request for the installation of a street light at the intersection of alleys between Newman and Wayne streets was given to the light committee.

UP IN AIR

Golfer Takes Stance High Up In Tree for Shot.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. —(AP)— E. A. Torrant, Wethersfield golfer, literally went up in the air on a shot in the state amateur golf championship.

Tied with his opponent after 19 holes, Torrant saw his 150-yard drive land in a tree 20 feet from the ground. He got a ladder and managed to play the shot, but the ball flopped behind the tree and he lost the hole and match.

THE Richland Printing club, last year's News-Journal Class "A" golf league champions, found themselves once more in the first place position following yesterday's 4 to 1 victory over the Barnes & Schmid Tires at Possum Run.

The Printers are now two points ahead of their nearest rival, the Long Bar team, which barely nosed out the Oaks club outfit yesterday by a 2 to 1 tally.

Joe Mayer, number one man on the Barnes foursome, copped low-scoring honors with a par 36 for the inside nine. He was the only player to score a win for the Tiremen. Mayer defeated Pete Linster, who chalked up a 38.

Frank Vild, of the Greystone Nite clubbers, paced off the nine for a 37 to miss sharing low-scoring honors with Mayer by a stroke. Vild defeated Grant Hanawalt of the Sloan's Drugs, who ticked off a 39.

Other low scores turned in yesterday were a 38 by Carl Kushin and 39's by Ray Oakes, Nick Linster, Steve Stirtzinger and John Kleshinski.

Mansfield Athletic Supply defeated the Yuncker Brothers foursome 3 to 0, while the Sloan's Drug outfit edged the Greystone Nite club, 3 to 2.

Here are the results of the June 11 matches, which were played last Friday: Richland Printing 4, Yuncker Brothers, 1; Long Bar 3, Sloan's Drugs 2; Greystone Nite club 2, Oaks club 1, and Barnes and Schmid Tires 2, Mansfield Athletic Supply 1. The matches which were scheduled for June 18 will be played next Friday. The Class "A" league was rained out two weeks in a row.

How to Get Thrown Out of A Ball Game--In 2 Easy Lessons

Frisch, Kelly, et al, bomb Umpire Sears with bombast.

"Get out—and stay out!" roars the aroused Mr. Sears. And the retreat begins.

You can't "blitzkrieg" an umpire, as three of the luckless Pittsburgh Pirates above discover. Pirate Frank Gustine is on second base, see, with none out in the tenth inning when Joe Vosmik, Brooklyn outfielder, snags Pirate Bob Elliot's fly ball. Umpire Ziggy Sears says Gustine left his base too early and was out. Screaming with rage, Manager Frankie Frisch, Coach Mike Kelly and Shortstop Floyd Vaughan (all Pirates) charge up to the imperturbable umps. Sears gives Frisch and Kelly the clubhouse thumb, see, and then what happens? Why, Pirate Lee Handley, to show his disgust ups and empties a pail of water on the playing field. Enter Umpire Jorda. An umpirical thumb jerks in the crisp June air and Handley joins fuming Mr. Frisch and furious Mr. Kelly in the clubhouse. The game winds up in a 4-4 tie, and nobody very happy about it. Kind of an anti-climax, after such a terrific war of words.

Harder Takes Mound Against Yanks Today

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians reluctantly wound up their series with the champion New York Yankees today—reluctantly, because the champs have helped the Tribe's prestige no end during the current stand.

Cleveland had won seven of its 10 games with the Yanks this season, and Mel Harder went to the mound in today's finale seeking to make it eight in 11. Trying to stave off a complete rout for the eastern club was Charlie Ruffing.

Hal and Al—first baseman Hal Trosky and Pitcher Al Milnar—collaborated for Cleveland's 5 to 3 victory over the Yanks yesterday, and perhaps Jupe Pluvius rates a little credit.

Trosky got his 16th and 17th home runs, to tie Jimmy Foxx of the Boston Red Sox for the league leadership And Milnar notched his 11th win to tie teammate Bob Feller for the major league lead in victories.

Jupe Pluvius took a hand before the game, delaying it 30 minutes, then held off long enough to make the Tribe's victory official at the end of the fifth.

Monte Pearson, former Cleveland hurler who lasted only three innings, was charged with the loss. He and Oral Hildebrand were touched for nine hits while Milnar yielded five.

It was the fourth straight defeat for the champions, and the 12th victory for the tribe in 14 games of the current home stand It put Cleveland 2½ games in front of Detroit and four ahead of Boston as the second and third place clubs divided a double header

Wants to Hear 'Booming Bats'

McKechnie Prophesies Reds Will Begin to Hit.

BOSTON —(AP)— Manager Bill McKechnie of the league leading Cincinnati Reds longs to hear again the booming bats of his two power drivers, Frank McCormick and Ernie Lombardi.

The Deacon doesn't say such music to his ears always means a pennant championship but he believes it helps a lot and in preparing for a double header with Boston today he observed:

"Watch our smoke when the boys start to hit. They'll make it easier on the pitchers, not to mention my disposition."

Lombardi, whose potent clubbing led the league in 1938, dropped to .287 last year and thus far this season has staked out a percentage of .309. McCormick, with a sparkling .332 last year, draws up at .298.

Despite that, the Reds held a two game lead, after the Cubs took Brooklyn into camp a minute before midnight with an 8-3 triumph, and Rhinelanders hoped Paul Derringer and Whitey Moore would widen the margin today.

Sailor Bill Posedel and Richard Errickson were called by Casey Stengel for Boston

Defending Champion Helen Detoler, Washington, D. C., barely qualified with 89.

Tigers Converted To Night Games

DETROIT —(AP)— Night baseball in the major leagues claimed another apparent convert today as the Detroit Tigers, who had been among the most stubborn "holdouts," started getting into line for play-under-lights. Owner Walter O. Briggs has decided to prepare for the night game for the 1941 season and Briggs Stadium is to be equipped for it. Only New York, Washington and Boston still hold out against the night game.

Manager Sets Good Example for Club

DAYTON —(AP)— Portsmouth's slugging manager, Walter "Smokey" Alston, is setting his last place Mid-Atlantic League Red Birds a pretty fair example.

Alston poled a homer in each game last night as the Birds defeated Dayon, 3 to 1 and 11 to 4. The second-game circuit clout came with the bases loaded. Peterman, Portsmouth hurler, allowed only four hits in the seven-inning opener.

Doubleheaders today will make up for last night's rain-postponed contests at Akron and Youngstown.

TEST HEAD PROTECTORS FOR BATTERS IN GAME

WICHITA, Kan. —(AP)— Head protectors for batters will be tested at the National Semi-Pro Baseball tournament at Wichita, Aug. 16-28, it was announced today.

Sons of Herman Continue Streak By Halting Cabbies

THE highly-touted Sons of Herman softball club lived up to its reputation yesterday by smothering the Safety Cab club, 9 to 1, at the Liberty park diamond.

Jim Fullager, Herman ace, held the Cabbies well in hand, allowing them only three hits. Fisher, who toed the Rubber for the Cabbies, gave the Hermans nine safeties, one of them a home run by Berry, Herman secondhaseman.

Garnering three hits out of three trips to the plate Harold Aston, Herman catcher walked off with the batting honors. Aston got one double. The rest were singles.

Fullager struck out three opposing batters, while Fisher, who also smashed out a triple, fanned two. It was the Herman's seventh straight triumph.

Golfers Tee Off Today In State Amateur Meet

By FRITZ HOWELL

CLEVELAND— (AP) —Top-flight mashie-swingers of the Buckeye domain teed off today at Shaker Heights Country club in the 18-hole qualifying round of the Ohio Golf association's 37th state amateur championship.

The 68 low scorers will join Bob Servis of Dayton, defending champion, in match play rounds the remainder of the week, with the 36-hole finals Sunday. Servis gets a place in the championship flight without a struggle, but he fired the qualifying round in hopes of snagging the medal—a feat he accomplished five times in the last 11 years.

About 80 names were on the board when the shooting started, but tee entrants were expected to boost the field to around 120. Much of the glamor of the annual classic is gone this year, for a most of the state's top-notchers are not entered.

Maurice J. McCarthy, jr., of Cincinnati, who like Servis has captured the crown three times in the last seven years, is passing up the event, as is Barney Hunt of Columbus, recently-crowned state public links king. Ken Patterson of Dayton, 1939 pay-as-you-play champ, is another absentee.

Some of the hot-shots in the competition are John Wood of Cincinnati, who lost to Servis 10 and 9 in the finals last year, Bob Randolph of Dayton, former state high school title winner, and Don Shock of Dayton, present holder of the scholastic laurels.

Servis "tuned up" yesterday with a blistering round of 70, two under par, with two balls out of bounds. Wood toured the 18 holes in 68, the best score ever registered by an amateur over the layout as now constituted.

Officers of the association last night named a nominating committee which will submit two slates of 15 men each for the board of directors at tonight's annual banquet. Fred Reese of Columbus was named chairman of the committee, with Wert Shoop of Washington Court House and R. A. Stranahan, sr., of Toledo as members.

* * *

Two rounds of match play are scheduled Thursday and Friday, with one 18-hole semi-finals jaunt Saturday, and the 36-hole championship round Sunday.

Majority Will String Along With Galento In Ring Battle

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK —(INS)— With Joe Louis among those who pick Max Baer to beat Tony Galento on Tuesday night of next week in the New Jersey City ball park, we can offer today in rebuttal to the heavyweight champion's forecast that a majority are going to string along with Galento in keeping with the betting odds that slightly favor him.

* * *

Having done that, we are going to present the following facts, factors and figures on the situation for the benefit of those who are interested, if any.

The fight is going to bring together two of the hardest hitters ever to clamber into a ring, but also two gentlemen who for vastly different reasons never could attain greatness even when they were good. Galento never was anything more than a clumsy puncher and in his years of campaigning blew decisions to gents long since forgotten. But he always had plenty of heart and toughness.

Baer never used the finer points of boxing either and he, too, was hard to hurt, and might have gone on to a place beside the best of will? them, but he lacked heart.

Both have been handy with a tankard or goblet through most of their lives, with the result that Baer went over his peak long before he should have after winning the championship. Galento still has his beer when the notion strikes him and as of today, six days before the fight, he weighs approximately 240 pounds. He says that's all right, and he will do about 235 and be fit. Baer is in as good shape as he ever will be at around 220.

Galento cuts easily but doesn't mind it as long as he can see through the blood. Baer is hard to cut, but won't go far beyond the first rip in the hide around his mouth or eyes.

Both men have been knocked out by Louis and one or the other will get it again in September, depending upon who wins.

Both are well fixed for life financially, family men, past 30 years and either can talk a better fight than both of them together can put up.

* * *

All of which tells just about everything except who will win the fight and by the way, who

Mansfield Gains On Pace-makers In League Race

Righthander Gives Up Double and Single In Beating Findlay; Club at Lima Tonight.

By CHARLES MARTIN

ROBERT ARNOLD today has established himself as one of the mainstays of the Mansfield Braves' mound staff.

Unable to find himself this season, Bob, the Braves' leading pitcher, stepped out on the hill last night and limited the league-leading Findlay Oilers to two hits as he hurled his teammates to a 6 to 2 triumph before a disappointing crowd of 250 under the floodlights.

Mansfield has been having trouble finding a twirler who can go the distance without giving up less than 10 hits and Arnold's brilliant performance brought a cheer from the club officials.

Arnold's triumph—his seventh against two setbacks this season—enabled the Braves to climb within five and a half games of the top position in the circuit race. It also put the club a game closer to the runner-up Lima club which suffered a 13 to 6 beating at the hands of Fostoria last night.

Mansfield faces a difficult task today for it travels to Lima to engage the Pandas in a doubleheader under the arcs tonight. Manager Dewey Stover named George Laurila and Alex Radoumis to handle the hill assignments.

The Braves will return to the Fair park at 8:15 o'clock Thursday to tangle with Lima under the arcs before a "Westinghouse night" gathering. An added feature of the Thursday game will be the first appearance of the new Westinghouse band.

Bob came within one inning of pitching a no-hitter last night. The first four innings after his teammates spotted him a 2 to 0 advantage Arnold handcuffed the Oilers with ease.

But in the fifth, the first pitch Robert tossed over, Mazgay, Findlay outfielder, smashed it against the wall in left centerfield for a double. Bob retired First Baseman Gerlach, but Simon hit a single to left to send Mazgay home. An error allowed Simon to reach third and he came in on an infield out.

From there on Arnold faced 13 men in four innings. Outside of Mazgay and Simon the only other Oilers to reach base got there by virtue of a walk.

While Bob was breezing along, the Braves were getting to Don May, southpaw, for single runs in the first and third. Mansfield added two markers in the fifth to break a 2-all deadlock and iced the affray with two tallies in the seventh.

Hal Hundemer and Howard Beals, the Braves' keystone combination, scored all the Mansfield runs. Four of the Braves, Matt Miazga, Herb Woodten, Beals and Hundemer, led the club at the plate with two hits apiece.

Findlay gave the Braves their two runs in the fifth. With two away, Hundemer and Beals were safe on errors. On the same play, Mazgay, right fielder, tossed the ball past third base trying to get Hundemer. Hal raced home and Huelsman, attempting to catch Beals at the plate, heaved the ball against the screen.

* * *

Harry Seigbert, Brave first baseman, had a busy evening. He handled 17 putouts.

Team Slips Slowly

Brooklyn Has Dropped Seven of Last Nine Contests.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

THERE is no time like midnight to unmask a miracle.

The Chicago Cubs did it last night, revealing that the Brooklyn Dodgers are no wonder-workers and that it will take a long and bitter battle to bring the National league pennant to Ebbets field.

Of their last nine decisions the Dodgers have dropped seven. The fact that it took 26 innings in two games to beat Brooklyn the seventh time, 8-3, couldn't cloak the Dodgers' disappointing slide.

They had a better chance than the Cubs to win last night. Trailing by one run as they went to bat in the last of the ninth, the Dodgers got a three-all tie when Babe Phelps opened with a home run Pitcher Hugh Casey was called out on strikes, but Peewee Reese tripled.

Then Joe Medwick, with Cookie Lavagetto and Dixie Walker on base by walks, dribbled a double play grounder to short. That was the ball game. The Dodgers made five errors and virtually gave the contest to the Cubs.

The only other game in the National league saw the Pittsburgh Pirates outlast the Phillies to win 9-7 and rise into fifth place again.

The day was a big but generally ineffectual interim in the American league, where the Cleveland Indians stopped the New York Yankees 5-3 while Boston and Detroit were standing each other off in a doubleheader.

The Red Sox routed Schoolboy Rowe for his first defeat in taking the first half of their doubleheader 11-7 despite three home runs by the Tiger sluggers. But in the second game Hal Newhouser halted the Red Sockers cold with four hits and seven strikeouts to win 5 to 1.

The St. Louis Browns, eager to pass the Yanks, had quite a struggle before they made it by downing the Philadelphia Athletics 12-10 in a night game. John Berardino hit a triple and two singles to bat in six runs.

In another night game the Washington Senators staved off a four-run rally in the ninth by the Chicago White Sox to win 7-6. The Senators outhit the Sox 15-9

New Indian

Recently purchased from the St. Louis Browns, Nate Andrews, pitcher, above, is the Cleveland Indians' newest face. Andrews hurled for Columbus in the American association last year, winning 17 games. He has been with St. Paul this season.

Although the Tinkeys smashed out a total of 13 hits, Ackerman, who was on the mound for the Shelby club, kept them well spaced so that the Tinkeys managed to push over only two runs.

Williams, Tinkey catcher, poled out a three-bagger to cop hitting honors Winebrenner struck out 10 and Ackerman 5.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— The next big government project should be the harnessing of Larry MacPhail.

With the Tennessee, Columbia and Colorado rivers under control the red-headed Irishman who heads the Brooklyn Dodgers is potentially this country's best source of horsepower. With MacPhail's energy diverted into the proper channels entire states could be lighted, factories operated, and, industry as a whole, stepped up a good 50 per cent.

Take MacPhail's vocal cords, for instance. Right now they are operating on only a 20-hour a day basis. That's a four-hour a day loss, as he is the first to admit. As if to prove that he could get them up to full time production before you could say Knudsen or Stettinus, he cornered me at the Aqueduct race track yesterday and ouched on more subjects than the encyclopedia Brittanica ever did.

He didn't hesitate a moment in finding a reason for the collapse of the New York Yankees. The fact that the Yanks are not in his league, and that he probably hasn't seen them play since they were known as the Highlanders, didn't deter him.

"Any fool could see what's wrong with that team," MacPhail said. I nodded understandingly, but MacPhail went right on.

"It's Dickey and Ruffing. The big catcher and the big pitcher. The one ain't hitting and the other ain't pitching. They've been the backbone of the Yanks for a long time. Up until this year Ruffing has been the guy who could walk out there and win the big game. The Yanks always knew he could stop a winning streak. That's not so now. Dickey always paced the hitters. Until this season Bill was the most feared man in the league. Now he's looking at strikes he used to knock out of the park.

"And there's something else. The Yanks have won so damn much they've forgotten how to lose. The average team wouldn't get panicky if it lost three or four in a row, because it's used to it. But losing is something new to the Yanks and they don't know how to face it."

MacPhail believes that your guess is as good as his as to the 1940 National pennant winner.

* * *

"Three or four clubs have a chance, including us. We've been shot with injuries, and our pitching has been below par. I believe that September will see three or four clubs slugging it out for the championship."

Opening Round Threatened

Showers May Delay Intercollegiate Tennis Tourney.

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Early showers threatened to postpone for the third consecutive day the opening round of the 56th annual national intercollegiate tennis tournament at the Merion Cricket club.

Chafing at the bit along with other contestants was Top-Seeded Don McNeill of Kenyon college who announced that winning the intercollegiate would mean more to him than his recent victory in Chicago over Bobby Riggs for the U. S. men's clay court title.

"There is something about the college spirit that is hard to beat," McNeill declared. "Riggs, Parker and the other nationally ranked ten players are better, I think, but there is another angle when you stack up against these fellows that give their all for dear alma mater.

"You know I would have defaulted in Chicago if there had been a match after rain postponed the finals until Monday, the same day the intercollegiates were scheduled to open at Merion."

McNeill, a native of Chikasha, Okla., was graduated from Kenyon at Gambier, O., this month and it will be the last crack at the collegiate title for the third-national ranking player.

* * *

He has mapped out an extensive tournament campaign for the summer and doesn't expect to start job hunting until the net season is climaxed by the Nationals at Forest Hill, L. I., in September.

A. A. U. Secretary Sets 'Olympic' Date

FRESNO, Cal. —(INS)— Daniel J. Ferries of New York, secretary-treasurer of the AAU, today designated the AAU track and field championships at Fresno Friday and Saturday as "the American Olympics of 1940."

"America," said Ferris, "has a world of champions this year who had planned to compete in the Olympic games. Practically all of whom will be in Fresno for the AAU carnival, which is, in fact, the American Olympics of 1940."

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns announced today their Aug. 9 baseball game here with the Cleveland Indians would be played under lights.

CATCHER DIES

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Jack Adams, who caught for the Cleveland baseball club in 1910 and later was with Philadelphia of the National league, died at his home here yesterday. He was 52.

CROW HUNTER'S SHOOT BEGINS AT KENTON

KENTON —(INS)— The 6th annual national crow hunter's championship shoot, sponsored by the American crow hunter's association, will begin at Kenton tomorrow and continue through Saturday.

Conservation commissioner Don Waters will present the Rausenberger trophy to the champion shooter at the annual banquet Saturday evening.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Believe-It-Or-Not: Up to today the St. Louis Browns had won more games than the Yanks—and with Yankee castoffs, at that . . also: Carl Snavely of Cornell will conduct a coaching school at Colorado U. this summer. One of his pupils will be Dutch Clark, coach of the Cleveland Professional Rams.

Even though he has been retired for the season, Van Mungo will be cut in for a full share of any series dough the Dodgers collect. . . . A Newark sportsman who lost 40 grand on Max Baer when he fought Braddock, has offered Tony Galento $1,000 for every tooth he knocks out of Baer's head Tuesday night.

HIS EAR WAS BENT.

They say poor Mr. Ford C. Frick fell out of his easy chair Monday night when one of the radio fellows calmly announced: " . All the other games in the Major leagues, also the National, were rained out "

St Lous writers say Ray Blades really got tough last spring and soured the Cardinals with his iron-handed methods. . . . The new Fordham-Tennessee football series is for three years, starting in the Cleveland Stadium in 1941. Fordham goes to Knoxville in 1942 and the Vols come here in 1943 . . . Doc Sutherland is in town for a conference with the Brooklyn football Barons.

BASEBALL TREND.

If you want more hits and passes,

Get yourself a pair of glasses.

Old Freddie Fitzsimmons appointed himself ambassador without portfolio to talk "Hot Potato" Hamlin off his pout and back into the Dodger lineup. . . . El Galento got sore at Jimmy Fraln, his trainer, and threw a punch. It missed train, but caught a character named Blackie (the camp chauffeur) flush on the kisser and knocked him stiffer than an Andalusian goat.

* * *

We could scarcely believe our eyes when one of the N. Y. papers today called Joe DiMaggio "just another centerfielder." . . . Joe Louis (who doesn't go for that sort of thing) is making his ballyhoo of the Baer-Galento camp under orders from higher up.

NYA'S AIRPORT PROGRAM READY FOR SUBMISSION

$40,000 Project to Be Sent To State for Approval In Next Two Weeks.

Extensive improvements proposed for Mansfield's municipal airport appeared nearer today as National Youth Administration officials prepared to submit a $40,000 project to Columbus headquarers for approval.

Plans by the government agency for improving the field were being drafted today and will go to Columbus within the next two weeks, it was learned.

The project was submitted several weeks ago but was turned down because of technicalities concerning the development of a roadside park by the state highway department.

City council subsequently granted the state a 10-year easement on an 800x200 foot tract along the route 13 frontage of the port for the development.

The project is planned to give approximately 100 Richland county youths between the ages of 18 and 25 employment for a year.

Major improvements include the construction of a roadside park and development of a parking ground; construction of an administration building and short-wave radio beam station; extension of the runways; and the sodding and rolling of the landing strips to make the field safe for wet weather flying.

These are improvements advocated by Maj. E. H. Jose, of Chicago, private flying specialist for the Civil Aeronautics Authority, who visited the airport last week.

He warned airport attaches that unless such improvements were made that Mansfield could not expect the government to spend any funds here for either civilian or military pilot training.

The CAA now has under instruction 10 youths enrolled in the civilian pilot training program. It plans to add at least 10 more students this month.

Meanwhile NYA officials said that the 100 youths at work on the Charles Mill dam development had already cleared the land where two parking lots will be built for fishermen.

Within the next few days, work will be started on docks to be built on the lake and the parking grounds will be gravelled.

One is located on the Richland county side of the lake just south of U. S. route 30 and the other on the Ashland county side just above the dam. They will be completed on about Aug. 15.

SAVES HEIFER

Swimming Officer Also Brings Muskrats Back Alive.

MILWAUKEE —(AP)— Officer William Beumer of the Wisconsin humane society stripped to his shorts, plunged into the flooded Menomonee river, swam 30 yards to a rapidly disappearing island and rescued a stranded, bawling heifer.

He then swam back to the island and returned with—six baby muskrats.

NO REDS ALLOWED

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio WPA workers and administrative employes must sign affidavits before July 1 disavowing affiliation with "subversive" organizations to keep their jobs. Forms already have gone out to the 115,000 persons on WPA rolls. Maximum penalty for false information is a $2,000 fine and two years imprisonment.

RICHLAND T. B. REPORT SHOWS RISES IN CASES

Board Says 46 Patients Being Treated at Cost to County Of $16,741 for 5 Months.

Almost as many tuberculosis patients have been cared for at county expense during the first five months of this year as there were for all of 1939, Richland county commissioners revealed today.

The half mill levy, voted last year for the care of tuberculosis patients and which became effective this year, has provided funds for the care of 46 patients so far this year, as compared to 54 patients for all of last year, commissioners said.

A number of patients have been sent from Mansfield and Richland county to sanitariums within the past month. There are now 32 in sanitariums and 14 being cared for in homes.

Bills for hospitalized cases for the first five months of this year have amounted to $11,159, while cases treated in homes added another $5,592 to the total cost of the five-month period.

$21,863 Cost for 1939.

Last year's entire bill for tuberculosis cases amounted to $21,863, with $12,888 paid out for hospital care and $9,975 for home care. Home care costs include salary of a nurse last year and a nurse and medical director this year.

There are seven Richland county patients housed at Edwin Shaw sanitarium, Akron, commissioners said today; two at Rocky Glenn, McConnellsville; ten at Green Springs; eight at Mt. Vernon state hospital and five at Avalon sanitarium, Mt. Vernon.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

A new book has been added to the library collection which follows a story that is already a favorite with many, both young and old.

BAMBI'S CHILDREN by Felix Salten. Bambi was a roe-deer, the leader of his flock. In the previous book he grew up into the most respected deer of the forest. In this one his children, Geno and Gurri are growing up. The suspense of the dangers common to the forest animals, together with the delightful experiences of this family of deer make this a beautiful story. All who loved "Bambi" before will enjoy his children in the same way, as well as their gentle mother, Faline. The squirrel, Perri, and the brown, He, who as the gamekeeper, protected the deer from hunters during the closed season are also present again.

Neither adversity nor prosperity ever changes a man; each merely brings out what there is in him.

BEYOND what he learns from personal experience, most of that which the average American knows is what he gets from his newspaper. And it is a liberal education, for the newspaper ALONE tells him the news comprehensively as it happens.

It is the dependence by the public on the newspaper which gives it such power as an advertising medium. As they read the news, readers turn instinctively to the advertising columns. They are in the habit of basing most of their buying on what they see in the newspaper.

Through the columns of The Mansfield News-Journal the advertiser can address a constant audience of more than 20,000 families. He is assured of a friendly hearing by an attentive audience ---already assembled for him.

Today, more than ever before, newspaper advertising is a selling force that has no rival as a medium through which to bring people into stores and to move merchandise.

WPA WORKERS HERE RECEIVE 'SUN ORDERS'

Insists on Salt Tablets, Hats And Shirts to Protect Men Employed Outdoors.

With hot summer weather approaching and the heat taxing outdoor laborers, WPA officials today issued the annual salt, shirt and hat order to protect workers from the burning sun.

These rules for the government agency's workers is expected to prpotect them against exhaustion during the torrid summer months.

A recent bulletin issued to Richland county workers along with the rest of the state insists upon the use of the salt tablets and the wearing of shirts and hats. The orders are backed up with the warning of one to three days' suspension without pay for violation.

The bulletin also emphasizes the necessity for drinking quantities of water and advises the use of salt in foods but cautions against taking the tablets at meal time.

Project workers are being supplied with the salt tablets and manual laborers are expected to take one pill per hour for full protection, achieved by the steady replacement of the saline solution in the body lost through perspiration.

The bulletin advocates prompt medical treatment for heat victims and concludes with some general advice which might be observed by everyone during hot weather:

Drink plenty of cool (not ice cold) water.

Avoid eating heavy meals during hot weather. Eat light, easily digestable foods in moderate amounts, avoiding fats and reducing the amount of protein foods, such as meat and eggs. Drink plenty of fruit juices.

Keep physically fit. Get plenty of sleep.

Assist the heat regulating mechanism of the body by the avoidance or reduction in the quantity of alcoholic drinks, tea, coffee and tobacco.

Replenish the salt lost from the body through perspiration.

Wear loose, thin clothing, but keep the head and spine well protected.

Love on a budget is the theme of "Saturday's Children," the picture which opens today at the Ohio with John Garfield and Anne Shirley in the co-starring roles. Featured with them are Claude Rains, Roscoe Karns, Lee Patrick and Dennie Moore. The story was adapted from the Maxwell Anderson play "Saturday's Children," a Pulitzer prize-winner. Garfield and Miss Shirley play the parts of a young couple beset with early marriage problems.

Husband Returns As Ghost.

Beginning today at the Madison is "Manhattan Heartbeat," starring Joan Davis, and "Earthbound" with Andrea Leeds and Warner Baxter. The latter picture is an amusing and fascinating drama centering about a ghost of a man who can't realize he is dead and tries to make his widow see, hear and understand him so he can prove his faithfulness to her and save his best friend from the guillotine.

Triangle Complications.

Romance under difficulties is experienced by Carole Lombard and Cary Grant in "In Name Only," showing at the Majestic. Kay Francis is also in one of the leading roles. Carole has the part of a charming young widow in love with Grant, a wealthy real estate operator married to Kay, who portrays a heartless mercenary mate who married Grant for his money. "Ninothcka," starring Greta Garbo, Melvyn Douglas and Ina Claire is the co-feature.

Sonja As Outdoor Girl.

Sonja Henie plays a combined dramatic and comedy role in addition to performing on ice-skates and skis in her picture "Everything Happens At Night," showing Wednesday and Thursday at the Ritz. Ray Milland and Robert Cummings are featured in the cast. The two boys have roles of newspaper reporters who fall for Sonja and fight for her love as well as for one of the biggest stories of the day. "A Child Is Born" is the co-feature, with Geraldine Fitzgerald and Jeffrey Lynn in the principal roles.

Young Buffalo Bill Cody.

Two features will be shown at the Park Thursday, Friday and Saturday, namely "Young Buffalo Bill" with Roy Rogers in the lead, and "They Shall Have Music," with Joel McCrea and Andrea Leeds in the starring roles. The Rogers picture is a stream-lined western in which Roy sings as well as he rides. He portrays a frontiersman, Buffalo Bill Cody, when as a youth he journeyed to the territory of New Mexico, in search of action and adventure.

30 PER CENT INCREASE SEEN IN NATURALIZATION REQUESTS

The number of aliens in Mansfield applying for citizenship this year will exceed last year's figures by about 30 per cent, Norman P. Henry, in charge of naturalization applications at the court house, said today.

There have been 18 applications in the past six week, mostly by German and Italian natives, he said.

The desire to become American citizens has increased among aliens in the past few years, according to Henry, who cited as reasons for the increase: the chaotic conditions in Europe for the past two years and the fact that most industrial plants now require workers to be naturalized.

Some of those who have applied in the past few weeks have lived in Mansfield for years; at least one of them has lived here for 30 years. Others have come to America within the year and are filing their first papers, he said.

Fifty aliens have applied for first papers so far this year. Last year about 100 Mansfield men and women received their second papers, and this figure is expected to be increased by 30 per cent before the year ends.

Henry explained the process of applying for naturalization as an American citizen. The applicant, he said, must take out two sets of papers, two years apart.

The first paper is a "declaration of intention" to become an American citizen, and this may be applied for anytime after six months of residence. Then two years must elapse before second papers, or a petition for naturalization, can be filed.

It is customary for aliens who have asked for first papers to take instructions in citizenship before they are granted final papers.

COST GOES UP

New Tax to Hike Price of Theater Tickets Here.

Evening admission prices at the Ohio and Madison theaters will automatically increase 10 per cent July 1 as the result of the new federal tax bill enacted to pay for the national defense program, it was announced today.

Only two theaters in Mansfield will be affected by the tax as theater prices under 25 cents are exempted. The increase is three cents on 25 and 30-cent admissions; four cents on 35 and 40-cent admissions and five cents on 45 and 50-cent admissions.

William Dworski, manager of the Ohio theater, said today that the present state tax of three per cent on the gross box office revenue, has been absorbed by the exhibitors in the past. This may be included now in the new admission prices when the federal tax goes into effect.

Other theaters in the city, the Majestic, Ritz and Park, are not affected by the federal tax because their admissions are under 25 cents.

Most of the things that are to be had for the asking benefit the giver more than the receiver.

HINT OF EARLY TRUCE FORCES MARKET DOWN

Steels, Aircrafts Rally In Noon Trading After 2-Point Drop.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Boardroom discussion of the possibility for an early truce between Great Britain and Germany sent stocks lower today.

Steels and Aircrafts slipped as much as two points in the morning, then strengthened by fractions toward the fourth hour.

On the downside were U. S Steel, Douglas, Sperry, Montgomery Ward, Harvester, U S Rubber, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, American Can, Westinghouse, Dupont Allied Chemical, Eastman, Phillip Morris, American Telephone and Public Service of N. J.

Bonds also lost ground, as did most commodities with the exception of rubber.

Observers noted declines in the price of both scrap copper and scrap iron and it was reported the rate of steel operations was likely to be lowered next week when some of the smaller comanies shut down for the Fourth of July vacation period

A contraseasonal dip in the nation's electric power output surprised many utilities stockholders and others following this barometer of industrial activity. It preceded a similar decline in steel production

A new survey of the motorcar situation found consumer demand for cars had increased sharply in recent days.

TAFT BACKERS START DRIVE FOR FAVORITE

'Infiltration' Campaign For Ohio's Favorite Son Started.

a large block of Pennsylvania votes, perhaps fifty, may swing to Taft once the Keystone state leaders are convinced James' race is futile. Two James' leaders denied reports of a possible deal to support Taft for president in return for second spot for Pennsylvania's governor.

Referring to the pressure drives and theatrical approaches of some opponents, Taft asserted confidently:

"The delegates will finally reach a conclusion through logic and not emotion."

Adding to prestige of the Taft cause were appearances at a pep rally of U. S. Sen. Arthur Capper of Kansas, an outstanding farm leader, and Richard Scandrett, New York attorney defeated for congress in 1938 on the same ticket with Dewey, then gubernatorial aspirant.

Cappen lauded the Ohioan and said "All Kansas delegates like Bob" although he avoided a declaration that Taft would receive the Kansas vote. The delegation will give Capper a complimentary vote but the senator said he did not take the gesture "very seriously."

Scandrett, in declaring for Taft, called both Dewey and Willkie his friends but said the Ohioan would make a better candidate. He called Taft the most remarkable vote-getter in the Republican party, citing his overwhelming defeat of U. S. Sen. Robert Bulkley, staunch New Deal supporter, two years ago.

In a lighter vein Scandrett said the "only argument against Willkie is that if Republicans do not nominate him he may go after the Democratic nomination in July."

He said the Willkie movement "looks like a revival of the Liberty league," adding that "Willkie obviously is a candidate of the district where I work—Wall Street."

"Willkie," he said, "goes further along the objectionable path of the New Deal than it went itself."

From Cleveland came Mayor Harold Burton, G. O. P. nominee for U. S. senator from Ohio, to throw his weight into the Taft scales.

"Bob Taft stands up under every test," said Burton. "Let the delegates think of the seriousness of their task and they will nominate him."

Governor Bricker was unable to attend the pep meeting, but Congressman Bender gave assurance the governor, often mentioned as a compromise presidential candidate, is "going the whole way and then some" for Senator Taft.

"Bricker is president of Stick-to-the-Finish club," shouted Bender. He added that Taft "has not lost a single delegate pledged to him" since raids by Willkie on delegates of leading candidates began.

Taft managers eyed with unconcealed interest the outcome of Kentucky's contest for national committeeman scheduled for a showdown today. If John Perkins, of Frankfort, should be re-elected certain Kentucky leaders forecast a bandwagon to Taft. The 22 Kentucky votes are understood to be about evenly divided between Taft and Dewey at the moment, with no Willkie strength evident. Perkins heads the faction favorable to Taft and Congressman John Robsion the pro-Dewey group.

Willkie Bids for Buckeye Votes.

PHILADELPHIA— (U.P.) —Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential candidate, made a bid today for the 52 votes of the Ohio delegation.

Willkie, starting a full day's schedule, spoke briefly at a breakfast meeting of Ohioans, including some delegates and alternates.

He repeated previous statements that he had no word of discouragement against his rivals but that the contest centered on two salient points—the respective beliefs of the candidates, and "who best can carry the banner against Franklin D. Roosevelt next fall." He described behind the scenes rumors or slanders as "acts of children" and urged his supporters not to indulge in them.

"If you are for me, be for me on the basis of what I stand for," Willkie said, "but don't be for me on the basis of being negative to somebody else."

"I am not seeking to go behind any favorite son. If and when—and it is going to be when—I'd like to have Ohio add to the majority because it will be an addition."

STRONG ARM

WASHINGTON, Ind. — (AP) — A broken arm didn't keep Ernest Warner, 25, from hunting groundhogs.

As he was crawling toward a den, his rifle discharged and the bullet went through the fractured arm. The splints had to be removed so the wound could be treated.

MOVES OF FLEET REMAIN SECRET

Officials Silent on U. S. Naval Maneuvers; Canal Zone and Asia Waters Considered.

San Pedro, Cal., home base of through the Panama Canal into the Atlantic.

Most Washington observers pointed out, however, that their initial direction might have been a subterfuge; that their course might have been changed after passing out of visual range of the Hawaiian mainland.

Other observers, however, believed that reports of increased defense activity in the Panama Canal zone—including reported mining of the canal entrances—indicated that this government expected possible trouble in that locality and was rushing at least some fleet units to the scene.

It was learned that mines had been sewn at both entrances of the Panama Canal, and that two batteries of 14-inch coast defense guns had been moved from the Pacific side to the Atlantic side to bolster defenses at the latter locale.

Likewise, it was learned that the 30,000 soldiers in the Canal Zone have been "on the alert" since last week-end, but army officials refused to divulge any details concerning the extraordinary precautions being undertaken to protect America's lifeline, the Panama Canal.

While the state department withheld even the most innocuous comment on the far eastern situation today, recent statements of department officials denied any intention of this government to surrender the Orient to Japan for the creation of its "New Order In Asia." So far as is known, nothing has happened to change this policy.

Both the Dutch East Indies and French Indo-China are important to the United States as sources of strategic raw materials vital to national defense—particularly rubber, tin and tungsten.

Moreover, Japanese domination of the two areas would render the Philippines useless as an American military and naval base.

According to reliable information in Washington, the French government, before its surrender to Germany, advised the French governor-general in Indo-China to use his own judgment in deciding whether it was worthwhile to try to repel a Japanese invasion.

France has two light cruisers, four destroyers and a few submarines based on Saigon, principal port of the land. Its land forces there total about 35,000 troops—mostly natives commanded by French officers—having two tank companies, two regiments of artillery and a mixed regiment of artillery and machine-guns. U. S. observers doubted whether they would be able to hold out long against an invasion by Japan from land, entering through China, as well as by sea.

Because of the war in Europe, British sources in Washington said, the British fleet in the Far East has been cut down to two heavy cruisers, a few destroyers and a few submarines. The British and French Far Eastern fleets together are insignificant in comparison with the Japanese sea power, including the nine capital ships, all based in the Orient.

Youth Synod of Ohio Organized By Presbyterians

WOOSTER—(U.P.)— Organization of a Presbyterian Youth Synod of Ohio was completed today at the annual meeting of the adult Presbyterian synod.

Officers of the new youth group will be Ralph Kipp, Cincinnati, moderator; George Cole, Toledo, vice moderator; Miss Olive Jones, Alliance, clerk, and Ralph Mumma, Bluffton, treasurer.

Rev. Ben V. Andrews, Cleveland, was elected vice president of the adult synod.

Dr. H. N. Morse of the board of national missions reported a drop from 44,000 to 39,000 in rural Presbyterian church membership in Ohio during 1914 and 1939. Number of Presbyterian churches in communities of 2,500 or less population in the state declined from 425 to 340.

Dr. Morse asserted that scarcity of churches in many rural districts should be dealt with as a community rather than a denominational problem.

AXIS PREPARES BRITISH DRIVE

Italy Takes Over Control of French Territories Under Armistice Terms.

Under the armistice terms, which England termed "harsh and humiliating," French frontier areas ranging from 30 to 120 miles in depth must be demilitarized.

Italian troops which fought their way into southeastern France and the Riviera are to remain in occupation of those areas for the duration of the war between the Rome-Berlin Allies and Britain.

The entire coast of French Somaliland is to be demilitarized under Italian supervision, as well as broad regions of French Algeria and Tunisia.

French naval bases and harbor works at Toulon, in the Mediterranean, and three other bases in French North Africa, also are to be demilitarized.

Patterned after the Franco-German truce, the Italo-French armistice helps to immobilize France and also contains some important provisions not included in the Berlin-Bordeaux agreement.

It provides that Italian troops in France are to remain "on their advanced lines in all theaters of operations" until a final peace treaty is concluded.

Under one of the most salient clauses of the truce, Italy obtained an outlet to the sea for conquered Abysinnia in a clause of the armistice which provided:

"Italy shall have the full and constant right to use the port of Djibouti and all its equipment, together with the French section of the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad, for all kinds of transport."

In other major respects, the Italo-French armistice closely corresponds with the Franco-German truce, except in regard to provisions affecting North Africa, the Alpine region and the Mediterranean coastal areas where French and Italian interests meet.

The truce provides that as a guarantee of execution of the terms "Italy may demand surrender of the whole or part of the collective French arms, infantry, artillery, armored cars, tanks, transport vehicles and ammunition belonging to units engaged with or facing Italian forces."

As with the Franco-German truce, the Italo-French agreement provides for disarming of the French navy under Italo-German control in certain ports, except for those units designated to "safeguard French colonial territories." As did the reich, Italy promised not to use any French warships for belligerent purposes, and not to claim any part of the French navy after the war with Britain is concluded.

Likewise, Italy may denounce the Armistice at any time if she feels France is not fulfilling her obligations.

LINCOLN'S WISH UP TO AMERICA

That's Message of Lecturer, Mansfield Native, Talking On World Crisis.

erty in the western hemisphere. These factors are even more important to us today, with our nearness to Europe, than they were in Monroe's time.

It was, he said, the Monroe doctrine that took us into the World war, and if we are to maintain our hemispheric defense, we may have to engage in a war again.

Frasher touched on what he terms our "paralyzed state of mind" as regards the present crisis referring to our wishful thinking on isolation.

This may have been brought about," he explained, "by our over-commitments in the World war. Perhaps it was not necessary to send land troops to fight in France and Belgium and perhaps it would have been enough to have sent our naval forces to strengthen the British navy. We are getting the re-action from those over-commitments now in the feeling of our people that we went too far in the World war, that we got beyond the hemispheric defense of the Monroe Doctrine, and that we will not make the same error twice.

Fraser said this feeling, this "state of mind" was prevalent among college students and had given rise to such slogans as "The Yanks Are Not Coming," in this present crisis.

"If we had only taken part in the naval defense of the Atlantic in those years, we might now be in a state of mind to cope with our crisis."

He referred to the Versailles treaty as "not the worst treaty in the world," saying that it had been prescribed by liberal ideals." "Had it been less liberal," he said, "the peace it set up might have been more permanent."

There is, he said, a very grave danger in our present unpreparedness; a danger which will be doubled if Germany should take the British navy in the next few months. We will not be prepared to meet such an eventuality for three or four years under the present defense plans.

After his address Fraser answered a number of questions, one of which touched on the economic effect of the war on America. He said any economic war that Germany may wage on America will hurt her as much as us, and that the barter system is so bungling and medieval in its operations and exchanges that it can only be a small part of international commerce.

After the lecture, the Women's Association served refreshments. Miss Kathleen McIntosh, Mansfield soprano, presented a group of songs before Fraser spoke.

HOOVER HINTS HE WOULD RUN FOR PRESIDENT

Stirs Convention With Attack On Roosevelt and New Deal Policies.

back to order with his gavel. Mr. Hoover looked again at the crowd, waved his hand slowly, and turned away.

Talk of the speech filled the convention hall as the delegates recessed until 1 p. m. (EST) today to complete a platform and wade through the oratorical flourishes which will usher the contesting candidates into the arena.

From a group of old timers who date back to the days when Former Sen. George H. Moses of New Hampshire, who presided over the 1928 convention at Kansas City which first nominated Mr. Hoover, said "it is a brand new Hoover who spoke to us tonight." Former Sen. David Reed of Pennsylvania called it a "great speech by a great man."

Speculation arose that the former president might be drafted by the convention to run again, but party leaders argued that such a movement would have to find roots in a deadlock between all or some of these four candidates—Wendell L. Willkie of New York, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan.

Even then, there might be room for a dark horse contender such as Frank Gannett of New York, Senator Bridges of New Hampshire, Governor James of Pennsylvania, or Hanford MacNider of Iowa, all of whom will get some first ballot votes.

Willkie managers figured he would get 100 votes on the first ballot. But the utilities executive was urging supporters to come to his side quickly instead of waiting through several ballots to let his vote snowball.

Kenneth F. Simpson, retiring New York national committeeman and a Dewey foe, indicated that he would support Willkie if Gannett dropped out.

Dewey and Taft were fighting to keep their lines clear and fishing for more delegates. Both claimed to have held their own.

Vandenberg aides said the senator was receiving overtures from the Taft, Dewey and Willkie camps for the vice presidential nomination. This, they declared, he would refuse.

A wave of oratory will mark the nominating speeches tonight.

The platform, approved last night by the resolutions committee, includes a foreign policy plank criticizing the Roosevelt administration's defense record, pledging an anti-war stand, and calling for aid to oppressed peoples.

Several planks followed the lines of Mr. Hoover's speech.

In it, he declared that the breakdown of various European democracies into totalitarian states was started along the way by "totalitarian liberals who he said "were the spiritual fathers of the New Deal."

"These so-called liberals shifted the relation of government to free enterprise from that of umpire to controller," he said.

"We have had eight years of experience with our own totalitarian liberals. Battling against all the natural forces of recovery, they have succeeded in stabilizing depression.

"Certainly the New Deal has not been allergic to power. And now, fed fat on power, they demand a third term for Mr. Roosevelt. That is not a mere violation of tradition. It is a violation of a fundamental restrain on power in this republic.

"But we Republicans would welcome Mr. Roosevelt as a candidate. For this battle must be fought out under the guns of debate."

DEMOCRATS ELECT O'DONNELL AS EXECUTIVE CHAIRMAN AGAIN

Without opposition, John C. O'Donnell, Mansfield attorney, was re-elected chairman of the Richland county Democratic executive committee at its organization meeting last night at the courthouse.

The committee also re-elected its other officers. They are George Koch, Shelby, vice chairman, and John Correll, Mansfield, secretary-treasurer.

Unlike the Democratic central committee's election several weeks ago when three candidates battled it out for the chairmanship, last night's session saw the executive committee give O'Donnell almost unanimous approval. Some did not vote. About 60 of the 92 committeemen attended.

The chairman's term is for two years. O'Donnell has headed the committee for the past two years.

Expressing his appreciation to the committee for its backing, O'Donnell said he had mapped no plans for the fall campaign, but would confer with the committee and county candidates later on the campaign strategy.

O'Donnell's re-election left the county Democratic organization in anti-Davey hands, since G. A. Baer, veteran party leader, was returned to the central committee chairmanship last month over two other candidates. Both O'Donnell and Baer were affiliated with the Charles Sawyer forces in the primary campaign in 1938, and favored former Governor George White over Martin L. Davey for the Democratic nomination for governor in the May primary.

JOHN C. O'DONNELL

DISPUTE RAGES OVER PLATFORM

short of war to the Allies by threatening a party-dividing floor fight. As a result of their efforts, the national defense preamble will proclaim:

"The Republican party is the party of Americanism, preparedness and peace. We accordingly fasten upon the New Deal full responsibility for our unpreparedness and for consequent danger of involvement in war."

It was uncertain when the platform would be presented to the convention. It probably will be ready when the delegates reconvene this afternoon, but its adoption may be delayed to catch the larger radio audience at night.

Advocates of aid to Great Britain succeeded in retaining a platform pledge of aid to "oppressed peoples whose liberties are threatened and whose ideologies agree with ours." But this was modified by a declaration that such aid should be consistent with our own national defense needs, and within the limits of international law.

The isolationists insisted also upon a recitation of the World war costs in men and money to the United States.

The platform blasts Mr. Roosevelt's expenditure of more than $50,000,000,000 in the last seven years without providing "an adequate national defense" or jobs for 10,000,000 unemployed.

The national defense plank reaffirms the Monroe Doctrine and urges acquisition of sufficient men, guns, ships and airplanes to enforce it.

On domestic issues, Republicans criticize New Deal methods and results, but do not advocate repeal of any major social legislation.

in the European war, or aid America, it was stressed. She is acting solely for a self-sufficient economic structure in East Asia.

Simultaneously the influential newspaper Asahi Shimbun reported the move of the cabinet, declaring the action was taken with a view to "preventing any western power from interferring in East Asia, including French Indo-China and the Netherlands East Indies."

A foreign office spokesman said he could not confirm that Japanese naval units had been sent to Haiphong—only that "observers" had been sent to Indo-China to watch developments concerning shipment of goods to the Crunking government in China via French Indo-China.

Japan Moves On Indo-China.

SHANGHAI, China — (U.P.) — Japanese army authorities, acting under their independent powers, have begun a drive toward the Indo-Chinese frontier from south China with the announced intention of halting the flow of supplies from the French colony to China, it was disclosed today.

The Japanese south China command, with general headquarters at Canton, announced that Japanese troops had reached the outskirts of Lungchow, important city on the Hanoi Lungchow railroad 18 miles from the Indo-China frontier and 420 miles inland from Canton, "after crushing all opposition."

warning all powers against interference in East Asia.

The newspaper said Japan planned to establish an "Asiatic Monroe Doctrine" to prevent Germany or Italy from seizing Far East possessions of European nations as spoils of war.

Rumbles of a new conflict impending in French Indo-China found support in a statement by the British-owned Hongkong telegraph that hostilities already have begun in France's Far East possession.

Japanese in Hongkong, however, said reports that Japan had invaded Indo-China were untrue and probably arose from the appearance of Japanese troops at Lungshow, near the Indo-China border.

The sudden, secret departure of the main United States fleet from Hawaii spurred mounting uncertainty in Washington regarding official intentions toward Japanese moves in the Far East.

Both White House and state department said they had "no news" of the fleet—leaving a big question mark as to whether the big battle force was steaming toward the Panama canal en route to South American waters, or toward the Orient.

FOREST FURY + + + + + + + + + +

By OREN ARNOLD

(Copyright 1940)

CHAPTER X

An hour later, sitting at a corner table inside the great log store, Monty had sketched a typical cabin of the type he recommended. He insisted that it be a log cabin in harmony with the post and with the forest surroundings. Also, he pointed out, logs would be cheaper building materials than lumber. He drew floor plans for the two rooms and bath and marked in all dimensions. It amounted to a fair architect's job.

"I say, Rosemary," he suddenly pointed his pencil at her, "just let me build this one experimentally, and rent it myself to live in for the summer. If its appearance is satisfactory, we can build more. If I am on the scene, here, I can study the customers better. And this is more convenient for my field trips than living in Flagstaff anyway.

It seemed like a happy thought. They discussed the details for another quarter hour, then Monty said that he might as well arrange the matter at once and so he departed for Flagstaff again. There he could get prices on all materials, paints, plumbing and electrical fixtures, labor and furnishings, and there he could commission a lawyer to prepare the necessary papers. He would finance this first cabin himself since it shouldn't cost more than a thousand dollars.

Rosemary found every hour in the store a busy one. While she had wisely let Walpi Tom continue as chief salesman, and had let Walpi Tom's squaw, Pola, have free rein in preparing meals for all of them, she had tried diligently to learn how to deal with the trade.

The post attracted all manner of customers, local folk and strangers, red men and white. Walpi had been too busy to talk with her much, save to answer questions about locating this, pricing that, exchanging and dusting and handling the post's infinitely varied stock. Walpi had been out one day when a farmer came in wanting a hame string, but fortunately Sue McKee was there and knew what hame string was and where to find it.

Sue came to the post on this day, too.

She motored up at 11:30 and told Rosemary she had brought a picnic lunch for both of them.

"Goody, let's eat down by the spring!" Rosemary suggested. "I can leave the store for an hour anyway, if Walpi will let he."

Sue laughed. "Don't you own the store?"

"Yes, but Walpi is the boss. Aren't you Walpi?"

The old Indian turned to regard the white girls. "Is better more work, less boss," he ruled, sagely.

The girls went out the rear door, past Walpi's and Pola's quarters, and in a moment were swallowed up by the majestic forest. They had to part branches and shrubs to follow the spring trail.

"Getting awful dry," Sue said "Keeps dad and Bob and the others busy now, guarding against fires."

"Oh," said Rosemary seriously. "Forest fires."

"Yes. They're terrible, honey. Terrible!"

"Well, all I know about your forest is rainstorms."

"Their season is past, now. And they don't compare with fires. Make dad tell you. Or Bob. Bob hasn't faced many, though. He's young yet, dad says."

Rosemary had brightened at the mention of Bob King.

"He is young, Sue, and so nice."

"Isn't he, though!"

She had barely murmured that last. Bob King. Dear old Bob. He had come wooing her like a whirlwind at first, and she had restrained him. But now— —

The two girls sat on mossy rocks beside the spring which came out of the mountain a hundred yards from the post. Great oaks guarded the place, and squirrels enlivened their branches. Two blue jays came squawking their curiosity, demanding to know why human being had intruded on their bower, but they were appeased with crumbs. The girls didn't talk much. Each seemed to have thoughts of her own. When they were done eating, however, and were just sitting, Sue spoke.

"Dad said that Bob will get a raise in salary in September. It will mean a lot to him."

"Grand!" Rosemary agreed.

"Daddy likes him. Says Bob is dependable and clean."

Sue said that as if expressing a thought, not for an answer. Nor did Rosemary reply. Together they just sat, thinking, dreaming.

Sue inhaled deeply and gave a long sigh. She looked happily at Rosemary then. Everything was so nice here, and Rosemary had turned out to be such a sweet girl friend—the only girl with whom Sue could really feel close—in fact, she was exceedingly happy.

Sue was thinking of Bob Of Bob's early proposal of marriage.

Well, she was ready for him now. With the summer's rush over in another two months, and the promised salary raise—glory!

Her lovely blue eyes became misty with the thinking. She wanted Bob King truly. And a girl in love simply must talk of it to some one. Fortunately, she felt sure Rosemary would understand and encourage her. It was not easy for a girl of Sue's quiet and somewhat dignified nature to pour out her heart secrets; never would she have been guilty of gushing them carelessly as a shallow girl will do. But Rosemary was a friend, intimate and dear. She would tell her. It would make Sue feel good to share her grand secret.

She reached to touch Rosemary's hand and the contact seemed to bring Rosemary out of a reverie of her own.

"Sue, darling," she murmured, suddenly, with feeling, "I've been thinking about something and I've just got to tell you. I've thought about it ever since last night. . . . I'm in love with Bob King!"

Sue's blue eyes widened. But she could utter only one word. "B-Bob?"

"Yes! And Sue—I am almost sure he loves me, too!"

Supper that evening found Sue McKee staring at food and leaving it cold. After the meal she walked out in the darkness for solitude. She had been alone since letaving Rosemary at half-past one and she wouldn't want to be near anybody now. Rosemary had talked. Not much, to be sure, but enough; appallingly enough. Rosemary had admitted loving Bob King, and had said she felt Bob loved her in return.

Sue had been speechless at this news. But she had said little, nothing in protest or in comment at all. Rosemary had duties back at the store, so when the luncheon by the spring had ended at last Sue motored back home. And spent the afternoon in quiet despair.

Now in the darkness she walked a half mile and back, then went determinedly to her room and took down a book. It was a book in which she had been deeply interested this morning. Now it was a flat and tasteless thing; indeed, she could not concentrate on it at all. She read four pages and knew naught of what she had read. Before nine o'clock she put it back on the table and turned on her radio

There was music from Denver. Coast-to-coast music with irresistible rhythm which ordinarily made Sue long for bright dining-rooms and gay laughter and crowds of happy people in fine clothes. Tonight, though, the melody seemed to have been buried completely in a cacophony of sticks and tin pans and bla-a-a-a-a-a-A-A-A from trumpets and the nerve-wracking sh-h, sh-h, sh-h, swish-swish, twee-e-e-e-e noises. She stood it for a little while and flipped the switch. Then she undressed and went to bed.

Two minutes later she turned over. Two minutes after that she turned back. Two years later she turned over for the last time without having had a wink of sleep, and because it was dawn she got up, sighing in sheer misery and exasperation. In the semi-darkness she dressed like a lifeless automaton, putting on hiking boots, and flare-sided trousers that laced under her knees, and a mannish red shirt, and even her beloved cartridge belt and holstered .38 with the pearl handle.

For breakfast she forced down some fruit and drank two cups of coffee — she who ordinarily drank no coffee at all. She ignored her morning duties around the home and immediately walked out into the forest. A mile from her home, down beside a massive boulder in a thicket of tall slender aspen trees, Sue had established a secret retreat or "playhouse" when she was about twelve years old. Now, almost twelve years later, the place was the same save that the aspens were larger. Their trunks were still naked white, their high-up leaves still quaked with an eternal nervousness in the breeze, chipmonks and squirrels and birds still frequented the place; violets still bloomed there early, and other flowers came as the seasons moved. Sue had not been to the spot for a year, but she plumped down there this morning on a drift of dry pine needles and aspen leaves and cried as if her heart would break.

In truth her heart was about to break.

Not from sadness so much as from a keener pain of hatred and hurt at herself. Because, in the hours since yesterday's picnic she had been in a hellish mental fury.

She had told herself that she hated Rosemary. That she hated Bob.

Then, denying all that, she told herself she would fight back at Rosemary and win Bob King at any price. Win him with her own beauty, of which she was conscious, selling it necessary her very soul to do so. But that plan had surely brought added anguish. The afternoon and the night had been black indeed.

This early morning, though, was a new day, and the forest retreat was idyllic. Poor Sue sobbed violently for a few minutes, then wiped her tears to stare off into the far distance — a view windowed by the silvery trunks of the aspens.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 26, 1940.

The same traits that make an habitual horn-honker make a reckless driver.

No traffic crashes have yet been credited to the fact that this is "Drink More Milk Month."

It is disclosed that with modern equipment the government can print money at the rate of 136,250 pieces in 25 seconds—but this can probably be speeded up if New Dealers find it advisable.

Consider America First

WITH the Republican national convention in Philadelphia approaching the nominating stage, uncertainty continues as to the probable outcome of the balloting, with present indications of developing a bitterness which might carry through into the campaign.

Viewed as a political speech, the keynote address by Harold E. Stassen, youthful governor of Minnesota, was a masterpiece of completeness in its indictment of the opposition and in its scathing arraignment of New Deal policies, as distinguished from the principles of the Democratic party.

Assurance was also given that affairs of the nation can be more safely entrusted, at this crucial time, to the Republicans than to the New Dealers, yet, in the absence of platform agreement and outstanding leadership, there was a feeling that something was lacking in the strength of the arguments presented—just as there was something lacking in the magnificent speech made by former President Herbert Hoover at the Republican national convention in Cleveland four years ago.

These are things that may be corrected when the platform has been adopted and a candidate for the presidency nominated, but up to this point the bickering over platform and candidates that has been going on in Philadelphia, and the "Stop So-and-so" movements that have been called into play arouse suspicion that partisan politics is still taking precedence over national well-being, as has been the sad experience of the past seven years.

Mr. Hoover's speech last night was another masterful presentation of the national and world situation from the Republican viewpoint and it is the belief of many that the former president has a broader grasp of these matters than any other man in America.

World conditions and national problems have become such, within recent months, that the American people are little concerned about political party labels. What they want is assurance of the capability of those chosen to administer government and a feeling of confidence that this nation will, as quickly as possible, become prepared to successfully combat any military force that might attack it.

Character as First Essential

ANY young persons who completed their high school or college courses without getting a good understanding of the meaning of the word, "character," would do well to devote their first leisure moments to a study of the word, and its implications—more particularly if they are now engaged in the task of finding, or holding, a job.

A large business concern, which annually hires large numbers of newly-graduated college students, recently conducted a survey in which it sought to confirm its own appraisal of traits which are considered most desirable in prospective workers.

A canvass of 345 colleges and schools of college rank in 43 states disclosed "character" as the most frequently mentioned requisite for job-qualification. This was emphasized in 82 per cent of the replies.

Next came scholarship, with 75 per cent—then the following qualifications in the order of percentage of mention: Adaptability, 56 per cent; campus popularity, 32 per cent; personality, 30 per cent; athletic prowess, 18 per cent.

Additional to the 82 per cent of replies which specified character as the first essential, a number of others said that "character is taken for granted." or "excellent character of course is understood to come before other qualities." so it may be safely assumed that few, if any, desirable jobs ever open to young men or young women who cannot place "character" among their qualifications.

For the benefit of any young persons—or older ones who may be interested—who lack understanding of what is meant by "character," the dictionary definition is as follows:

"Highly developed or strongly marked moral qualities; individuality, especially as distinguished by moral excellence; moral vigor or firmness, especially as acquired through self discipline; inhibitory control of one's instinctive impulses."

Lest some young people think they are being discriminated against by the "character" requirement in getting a job, it may be revealed that "character" is equally essential to success as an employer, in the professions, in any line of business, or in public offices, and that morality, honesty, dependability, industry and sobriety are among the most readily identifiable evidences of "character."

Crops for Lean Years

CROP restrictions this year may be unfortunate. The conditions that invited severe restriction no longer exist. Huge quantities of foodstuffs and other agricultural products accumulated and stored are evidently going to be needed for relief in foreign countries.

The Red Cross and other agencies are already distributing them abroad. And foreign demands are sure to grow from now on, in the war-stricken countries. Wherever the steamrollers of the dictators pass over, they leave their victim nations with a blighted economy and a growing food crisis. It is estimated that all western Europe, and perhaps Europe as a whole, will face a shortage of one-fourth of its normal food requirements for next fall and winter. And the need of clothing will be almost as great.

Much of this relief will be paid for, but much will be charity. And it will not do to say, "Hitler and Mussolini have done this—let them feed the victims they have made." They will not or cannot do it, and the moral burden will fall, as usual, mostly upon America.

It will hardly be possible to raise too much food and other agricultural products this year, provided the surplus can be kept from spoiling. It will be a safeguard for this country as well as others. Everything seems to indicate that the world in general is about to experience some very lean years.

Efforts are now being made to perfect an automobile brake that will get right whenever the driver does.

Father's new pipe should be fairly well broken in by now.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—We were reminded of Earl Carroll by a simple little sign in a 52nd street night club the other evening. Carroll was famous for his "Vanities" on Broadway, and there was a sign above the stage door of his theater which said "Through These Portals Pass the Most Beautiful Girls in the World." . . . More realistic than idealistic, the proprietor of this night club has altered the wording of his sign to read, "Through these portals the most beautiful girls in the world PASS OUT."

We also were reminded of Ziegfeld just a couple of days ago by notice of a singer in a suburban restaurant. Perhaps her name had best be omitted, although probably you can guess it easily enough. This girl came from Kentucky and was known as one of the most beautiful girls who ever worked in a Ziegfeld show. But her luck ran out. She became involved in a scandal and disappeared. They say she worked in Paris and later in China. Now, with her youthful freshness and beauty gone, she is singing melancholy songs in a third-rate restaurant for the reported handout of $25 a week.

IT TOOK about five minutes to find a completely satisfactory replacement for Betty Grable when she stepped out of the cast of "Dubarry Was a Lady" the other day. The newcomer was Ruth Bond, a little blond girl from Rutherford, N. J., who has made a habit in recent seasons of stepping into the shoes of stars who, for one reason or another have abandoned important roles on Broadway.

Miss Bond would rather be a straight dramatic actress than anything she is able to imagine, but her talents for tap, time-step, adagio and ballet, plus a naturally pleasant singing voice, were precisely what Buddy DeSylva needed when Miss Grable announced, following a dinner engagement with ex-husband Jackie Cooper, that she was returning to Hollywood. Miss Bond has a laugh and sense of comedy that reminds much of Ina Claire—in fact, she looks a great deal like Miss Claire, who undoubtedly still is the first comedienne of the Broadway theater.

"I suppose I inherited the temperament that enables me to step into new roles without much previous thought or rehearsal," Miss Bond says, "because some of my ancestors and kinsmen were vaudeville people, and one — Ethel MacDonough—was a noted headliner on Broadway."

It hasn't been so long ago that Miss Bond, on four hours notice, took over the assignment of a star in the musical "Red Hot and Blue." The critical applause she won for her "relief pitching" efforts marked her among producers as a girl to know when trouble beckons. There just doesn't appear to be anything around the theater that she can't do.

LATER we dropped in to see Al Jolson during a rehearsal of his new musical "Hold on to Your Hats," and, after mopping his be-dewed brow, he pointed to a nice looking girl and said he had just given her a job, "though I don't quite understand why."

"She came in here saying she wanted a job because she wanted to divorce her husband in Chicago, and Chicago was that much nearer Reno. We open in Chicago, you know. When I asked her what grounds for suit she intended to use, she said, 'On grounds of exertion.' I was so speechless that I hired her."

War Upsets International Law

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

THAT international law doesn't amount to much, except occasionally, when its application is of no consequence to anybody, is illustrated afresh almost every day now in the face of present world condition.

When times are normal and questions before such a body as the League of Nations can be discussed rationally, it's all very well to quote international law.

Even as friction begins to develop this sort of law is mentioned for awhile. Illustratively, when the Americas drew a non-belligerent zone around themselves and warned the warring powers to keep out of it they argued that international law supported their thesis and the belligerents likewise were not then so far gone as to refuse to discuss the issue. To be sure, it was not long before they were violating the Americas' ukase, but by that time they had arrived at the conclusion that the rule was not internationally legal.

It is the same with all of the rival belligerents' operations, military, naval and overhead.

Each time a belligerent hits on a new method of fighting, which he considers likely to prove effective, he adopts it. The foe promptly sets up the claim that that method is outrageously internationally illegal. The opposition country replies that it is no such thing and there is no court of appeals for the disputants to submit their case to.

Just now the United States is effecting a transfer to the Allies of large quantities of war stores, particularly planes, left over from the world conflict. To the average individual the question must arise. "Isn't much of this material so far out of date now as to be practically worthless?"

The Allies Want It.

The answer seems to be that the stuff is pretty useful even yet or the Allies wouldn't be so anxious to obtain possession of it.

At any rate, Attorney General Robert Jackson gives it as his opinion that the transfer implies no violation of international law. Uncle Sam and the Allies, wanting the transaction to go through promptly, agree that Jackson is quite right. The Germans contradict this, as might be expected.

It's a characteristic example of international law's working. If you choose to accept it, it's the real legal article. Otherwise, it's utterly phoney provided the objector has the physical strength to veto it.

The suggestion is made that the disposition of the current store of American munitions is one of the plans, "short of war," proposed by President Roosevelt as a means of remaining Americanly non-belligerent while helping the side of our sympathetic preference in overseas hostilities.

"Short of War."

To be sure, there are critics who maintain that it is not very far "short of war."

In all moderate circles much satisfaction is expressed over Attorney General Jackson's assurance that there will be no literal epidemic of arrests in connection with his anti-spy campaign.

Folk whose memories date back to the last World war recall that anti-espionage activities in those days attained unreasonable proportions and very few except violent extremists wish to see them repeated. That there will be a certain proportion of activity by enemy agents is regarded as inevitable, but the administration itself is far from desiring to see it opposed at all more harshly than is inevitable.

Listen, World!

"Stormy Weather"

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

STOPPING over in Chicago—doing a talkie tour. And was I blue! Blue as only a Californian, who's part Mick, can be blue. Homesick . . . discouraged. Couldn't think—couldn't write. So I went to the movies.

Chicago theater. Nice place. Mighty nice. Wiped away the homesickness with its first friendly smile. Yet I still was blue. Thinking of the tragedy overseas . . . of the spreading fear, here at home . . . of the heartbreak and horror belting the world. Thinking and wishing I could do something to help. Wishing, too, that I could find something to put courage back in my own sagging spine.

And suddenly I did! Came a soft swish—and a girl was wheeled on to the stage. A red-haired, wide-eyed girl with laughing lips and a fighting chin . . . as delicately made as a bird . . . but a bird with crippled wings. There she sat, that girl, in trailing white, carried in a wheel chair . . . hopping blithely to a high chair before the "mike" . . . with never a quaver to show that her wings would fly no more.

And a roar greeted her. For here was no casual stranger. Here was valiant Connie Boswell . . . beloved by all the radio world . . . wheeled on by the husband who shares her buoyant spirit and her gallant determination to keep on singing through her long, dark night.

Connie Boswell—I'd heard of her, of course. Been touched by her story. Yet, even as I listened to that thunderous welcome and watched her starry-eyed response, I was thinking to myself—"What can this poor, handicapped child . . . this sheltered woman . . . know of the world's agony today? What can she realize of the terror sweeping all hearts . . . of the loneliness and bewilderment."

I stopped. For, out from the spotlight, a voice was coming. A voice that held all the loneliness in the world . . . that throbbed with misery and yearned with heartbreak and hunger . . . then rose, on broken wings, to noble heights.

Connie Boswell was singing "Stormy Weather"!

And in that song, clutching the throat with its passion there lay all the hurt of humanity.

"Stormy Weather." know that song? Remember the plea that joy may come again . . . and courage to go on, even though Fate has changed its smiling face? Remember the deserted woman's prayer that "the old rocking chair" may not get her . . . that she may, once more, "walk in the sun"? Connie Boswell was singing those words—singing with pain brimming her blue eyes, quivering through her frail hands. But she was not singing them for herself, though God knows she has the right. She was not singing of her own tragic chair, her own pitiful hunger to "walk in the sun" once more.

GLORIOUS VOICE RISING, FALLING . . . CHALLENGING THE VERY HEAVENS IN ITS PASSIONATE PLEA . . . CONNIE BOSWELL WAS SINGING FOR AMERICA!

She was praying that America might come whole and clean through its "Stormy Weather" . . . that it might be saved from the dreadful "rocking chair" of complacency and indifference and cowardly compromise. Out of her own personal tragedy and bondage, a crippled girl, who may never step again, was pleading that America might walk, forever, in the pride and freedom of the sun . . . and was stirring each listening spirit to a new and nobler conception of its duty and its rights.

Then she was gone, tears on her face, hands trembling . . . gone in her lifelong chair. Gone, with her song flaming like a newly lit torch in every heart that had heard her.

While I, who can walk so swift and straight . . . I, who have whined so loud and long . . . I sat there, ashamed. Thinking of all I've had . . . and how little I'm giving in return.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

PHILADELPHIA—Alf Landon's remark that the Stimson-Knox cabinet appointments meant that the president would not seek another term wasn't just wishful thinking. The Kansan had good grounds for saying that.

His authority was Colonel Frank Knox himself. The Chicago publisher talked freely to more than one Republican leader about his private conversation with Roosevelt when he was offered the navy post. As they relay it, this was what Knox told them occurred:

The president began by reminding Knox that last fall, when he was first offered the cabinet place, Knox had declined on the ground that he did not consider the emergency sufficiently acute to break his party ties. Roosevelt said he felt there now could be no question of the urgency of the situation, and therefor Knox, as a patriotic American, should no longer hesitate to give his services to his country.

Knox agreed that things were serious, and expressed his willingness to co-operate. But he felt that before entering the cabinet he had the right to inquire about the president's political plans.

Roosevelt promptly agreed this was fair, and asked Knox what he wanted to know.

"I'd like to know," said the publisher, "whether you are going to run for a third term."

Looking Knox squarely in the eye, the president replied, "Frank, I am not a candidate."

"Then, Mr. President, why don't you say that publicly?"

Roosevelt's answer was that it would instantly destroy the influence of the U. S. government in the extremely critical world situation. He pointed out that the country was confronted with grave problems in South America and the Far East as a result of what was happening in Europe, and that it would be very unwise for him to say anything about his plans at this time.

"May I ask," said Knox, "who is your choice for the Democratic nomination?"

Again, without hesitation, Roosevelt replied, "Cordell Hull."

Skeptical GOP.

SEVERAL of the GOP leaders to whom Knox related this story voiced skepticism. They pointed out that Roosevelt had not said he would not run, only that he was not a candidate.

"I am thoroughly convinced," replied Knox, "that he sincerely does not want to run."

"I don't doubt it," argued one of the leaders. "But that still would not prevent him from running. What if he is drafted? That's the big question; what will he do then? Did you ask him about that?"

Knox admitted he had not, but insisted he was convinced the president had no thought of running again.

"Maybe so," was the skeptical answer, "but he no longer has a choice. That's up to the Democrats. If they draft him, he'll run."

Note—First word to reach Secretary of War Woodring that he was being bounced was Tuesday night, two days before Stimson's appointment was announced. He received a letter, by messenger, from the president breaking the news. Woodring immediately replied with a letter. Neither of these very interesting communications has yet been made public.

Latin Scholar.

GOVERNOR Arthur James, Pennsylvania's freckled dark horse, got off to a bad start in making an impression on the convention. The delegates had a big laugh at his expense while his managers were in the midst of strenuous efforts to boost his stock.

James was a guest speaker at a big Philadelphia high school commencement, and to the startled surprise of the 5,700 young graduates read them a lecture on their scholastic failings.

"The trouble with you students," he said serenely, "is that you don't know any Latin. Take my high school motto, 'omnia labora vinces'. You don't know what it means. It means, 'labor conquers all things'."

A burst of derisive laughter greeted this sally and James, looking puzzled, sat down. He was enlightened a few minutes later by Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, also on the program.

"They taught Latin in my day, too," the tall, handsome jurist said with a smile. "And the way I was taught that motto was, 'labor omnia vincit'."

The big throng broke into a roar of appreciative applause.

Merry-Go-Round.

POTENT Pennsylvania boss Joe Pew is unimpressed by the delegate claims of the rival camps. He bet four newspapermen $10 hats that no candidate would poll 300 votes on the first ballot. . . . Doughty Frank Gannett has the largest and most elaborate headquarter posters and banners in town. One of them, on the outside of his hotel, was so huge that the Taft camp, also located there, threatened to sue the hotel for breach of contract unless it was removed. . . . But the Taftites have the biggest telephone set-up at the convention. Their headquarters is equipped with 120 trunk lines. . . . Wendell Willkie leads in the number of headquarters. The "Wall Street Oomph Boy", as his rivals refer to him, has six different locations, each elaborately decorated and manned largely with young stock brokers who volunteered their services.

Hitler's Secret Gas.

WASHINGTON — All the evidence gathered by military agents abroad now points to the probability that Hitler's secret plan for conquering Britain is poison gas.

It is significant that so far, Hitler has not used gas. Even more significant is the fact that he has been storing it up in huge reserves. French and British intelligence officers have sent back reports that alarming quantities are now manufactured and ready for use. Whether any new and more deadly form of gas has been perfected, they do not know.

One reason Hitler did not use gas in attacking France and Belgium was that his army was moving too fast. His tanks and armored cars were penetrating into the enemy lines so rapidly that they would have caught up with their own gas. It would have hampered Nazi operations rather than aided them.

But in England it will be different. For the English Channel lies between Germany and her victim. There will be no danger of the gas seeping back to Nazi invaders until they actually land troops.

And so far all evidence indicates that before attempting to land troops, Hitler will subject England to a rain of bombs such as the world never has seen before.

Hurricane Ahead!

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

STORM warnings are valuable only if people heed them.

At the time of the Florida hurricane of '26 my wife and I lived in a cottage at the edge of St. Petersburg. I had a huckster route. For days, warnings of hurricane ahead were posted in downtown districts and printed in all the papers. The daily progress of the storm was told as it approached, by sea.

To Northerners and newlyweds, as we were then, that was a never-to-be-forgotten time. Having no previous experience to guide us, we supposed a hurricane must resemble a big Ohio thunderstorm. We decided not to be scared out of our own home into a hotel, as many were. I kept on with my work as usual.

The storm was timed to break at 3 p. m. Business was very good. I sold out and hurried back for a second load. The sky was black with heavy purplish clouds. The air was ominously still, and it grew as dark as twilight. At 3 o'clock I was still selling produce to customers who stocked up as for a siege. Only when big drops began to make wet blotches upon the street did I call it a day and run for home.

We went into our little house and barred the door. Steady rain began to fall—to drive—to pour. It rained all night as hard as any thunderstorm I have ever seen. Our cottage creaked and swayed. The metal roof sprung a leak and the lights went out. We set a dishpan at the bed's head to catch the drip and waited, huddled at the foot, for dawn. Stepping off the bed to grope in the kitchen for matches, we felt two inches of water upon the floor. A quick fearsome picture of the whole Floridian peninsula being washed into the Gulf of Mexico went through our minds, and we asked each other how high we were above sea level, anyway.

Daylight was never more welcome. Confidence came back. The sky began to clear by mid-forenoon. We put on bathing suits and waded out to where our car stood hub deep in a miniature lake. We pried up one wheel and tried to start. Only after we heated the sparkplugs in the frying pan to thoroughly dry them, did we get the motor running. The sun was shining then, and we climbed in and went for a tour of the sights.

Roofs were off many houses better than ours. Homes were blown over. Our own cottage leaned badly to the north. Big boats had washed up into the city streets. Several people had drowned. Only in the sturdy brick and concrete business district was business anything like as usual."

Native "crackers" told us, "Yes, that was a bad blow. We may not have another for many years—but one can't tell."

Correction of Mansfield's house numbering system is keeping council busy naming and changing the names of various city streets.

Meeting in special session last night, council named two unnamed alleys; changed the name of three streets, and received another request for naming an alley.

The requests have come to the legislators from property owners who are interested in obtaining correct house numbers, and consequently cannot get them where the streets are unnamed.

Councilmen during the last two months have named several alleys and changed the names of several other streets where there was a similarity of names.

Latest changes include the naming of an alley running off of East Fourth street, Micah place; Hemlock alley was changed to Hemlock avenue; Monroe street to Auburn avenue; Lawnview to Taylor road, and an alley between McPherson street and Burns street to Parnell drive.

A request to name an alley between Lexington avenue and Scholl road, Lexington circle, was referred to the street committee.

BUGGY RIDE

REDMOND, Ore. —(INS)— It's not a case of "keeping up with the Joneses" anymore for Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hart. While their neighbors sported streamlined automobiles, the Harts reclaimed an old storage check held by a relative. A fringed-top surrey and a single buggy was delivered to their home at Redmond. The surrey and buggy, memoirs of a bygone age, had been in storage for 30 years and were as new as the day they were ordered.

AWARDS SEWER LINE CONTRACT

City Accepts $4,944 Bid for Coleman Road, Overlook, Bernard, Sloane Jobs.

Contract for the construction of extensions in the sanitary sewer system on four streets was awarded today to R. O. Darling and Son, second lowest bidder.

Darling proposed a price of $4,944.45, or more than $300 more than the bid submitted by Roger Au, whose proposal was $4,660.75.

Mayor William J. Locke said the contract was given to Darling after Au failed to post the necessary bond.

The improvement calls for construction of the sewers on Coleman road, Overlook avenue, and Barnard and Sloane avenues.

Other bidders on the construction were Thompson-Coni and company, Columbus, $6,617.50; Dell Construction company, Cleveland, $8,014, and Frank Morelli, Ft. Wayne, Ind., $13,918.

Council authorized the improvements at its May 7 meeting and approved the issuance of notes in anticipation of the collection of assessments to meet the property owners' share of the cost.

MOVIES BOOKED

Plumbers, Contractors to See What Makes Tanks Explode.

Mansfield plumbers and building contractors will be shown what causes hot water tanks to explode when they gather at the Trades Council hall Thursday evening.

A moving picture made by a valve manufacturing company of explosive tests on a hot water tank will be shown to the group by A. J. Harvey, Jr., Cleveland, representative of the firm.

A demonstration showing the operation of several different types of temperature and pressure relief valves for hot water heaters will also be given by Harvey.

The meeting is sponsored by the Mansfield health department. Fred Haag, city plumbing inspector will be chairman.

3,700 Statements For Sewer, Water Rental Prepared

Approximately 3,700 customers of the municipal water service east of Main street will receive their sewer bills along with their semi-annual water statements next Monday.

Fred A. Lingafelter, secretary of the city water, sewer and garbage departments, said today that the bills, totaling about $28,000 will be placed in the mail either Friday or Saturday.

Payments are due at the office of the water department at City hall between July 1 and 15.

Lingafelter said that of the total, $18,000 represented the water billing while sewer rental amounted to about $9,600. A billing to the Ohio State reformatory for $2,000, is included in the amount.

The name "Balkans" is Turkish for "mountains."

ACRE FINALLY HAS POSTOFFICE

CASPER, Wyo. —(U.P.)— "Hell's Half Acre" that erosion phenomenon so appropriately named by Wyoming's pioneers has gone modern.

One of the Yellowstone highway's most interesting tourist attractions, the "half acre" has obtained a postoffice.

Located 40 miles west of Casper, the famous landmark in reality is much larger than a half-acre. Pitted by innumerable stalagmite-like pinnacles that survived erosion's deadly effect, the "acre" presents to the visitor hundreds of various colored strata.

Mansfield Girl Becomes Bride of Publisher at Noon Yesterday; Pair Leave for Alaskan Trip Following Ceremony.

MISS CORRINE ELIZABETH MILLER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller, 589 Springmill street, was married to Edwin Elmore Jacobs, jr., publisher of the Kingsburg Recorder at Kingsburg, Calif., and son of Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Jacobs, 230 College avenue, Ashland, at the Methodist church at Kingsburg at high noon yesterday.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. G. McVay, pastor of the church, and was atatended by relatives and intimate friends.

The bride was dressed in an ensemble of Tucson blue silk crepe and wore an orchid corsage. She was unattended.

Best man was Cassel Jacobs, of Los Angeles, elder brother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Jacobs, mother of the bridegroom, wasattired in a dusty rose ensemble and wore a gardenia corsage.

Immediately afte. the ceremony the couple left by train for San Francisco. They will then go to Alaska by boat. The bride wore a pink dress with light blue accessories and corsage for her wedding trip.

Capacity Crowd Attends Recital Of Violin Pupils

Eugene Weinberger Has 12th Annual Program at Leland Hotel.

MORE than 350 persons gathered in the ball room of the Mansfield-Leland hotel last night to hear the 12th annual student recital presented by Eugene Weinberger, professor of violin. Outstanding selections from the better known composers were given by approximately 20 students.

Featured number of the program was the overture from "Bohemian Girl" by Balfe which was played by the Little Mansfield Symphony. The largo movement from the "New World Symphony" was played by the quartet composed of Joseph Pival, Gale Shriner, Geraldine Marlow and Margaret Berry with Otillia Myers at the piano.

Joseph, Gale and Margaret have all been recent winners of first places in the contests sponsored by the state federation of Music Clubs of Ohio. For an encore they played "Gavotte" by Gucec.

The program was opened by Richard De Sanze playing "Minuet in G" by Beethoven. He was followed by Carl Haefeli playing "By the Waters of Minnetonka" by Lieurance, and Carl Kraus playing "Hungarian Dance No. 5" by Brahms. Charles Kenny and Fritz Schenk played the violin duo "Carnival of Venice" arranged by Hardey.

Additional selections on the first half of the program were "Norwegian Dance" by Greig, played by Mary K. Berry, Lexington, another state contest first prize winner; "Poupee Valsante" by Poldini played by Charles Kenny, "Kuiawiak" by Wieniawski, played by Wesley Smith, Greenwich; "Frasquita" by Lehar-Kreisler, played by Jean Gardner, Ashland; "Serenade" by Drdla played by Eloise Harbaugh, and "Canzonetta" by Ambrosio, played by Evangeline Stone.

Following the intermission Geraldine Marlow played the first and second movements of "Sonata No. 4" by Handel, and Robert King, Salem, played "Variations on a Theme" by Corelli-Tartine.

Concluding selections were "Romanza Andaluza" by Sarasate given by Betty J. Shirey, Shiloh, also a first prize winner; "Spanish Dance" by Rehfeld, by Margaret Berry; "Praeludium and Allegro" by Kreisler given by Gale Shriner, Galion, and "La Follia" by Correlli-Leonard played by Joseph Pival.

Accompanists in addition to Mrs. Myers were Miss Thelma Reed and Margaret B. Hall.

Prof. Jay Warner, Dayton, instructor in music at Miami university, Oxford, was here for the recital, and is now spending a few days as the houseguest of Mr. Weinberger, 74 Bowman street.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

ARE you going dancing Saturday night or next week over the Fourth of July holiday? Well then, you'll probably want a new dress to wear while whirling around the floor. . . . One of the coolest and most graceful looking formals that I saw while shopping yesterday was of soft rose chiffon, made with flowing full-skirted lines and bishop sleeves. . . . A wide dubonnet belt and pearl studs formed the detailed touches. . . . If you're interested in having a washable formal, I'm sure you'd be pleased with one of white pique—the full skirt is of plain pique, while the bodice is of eyelet pique. . . . Red grosgrain ribbon trims the square neckline, the sleeves and set-in belt. . . . Another style of formal that is a bit unusual and very attractive is one of blue linen crash. . . . The only trim on the tailored dress and jacket is an embroidered cut-work design through the bottom of the full skirt and around the border of the jacket.

Marianne

On cool evenings, you can top your formal gown with a full-length coat of crisp white waffle weave pique. . . . Fashioned along fitted lines, it fastens with bright gold military buttons and has an attached hood. . . . When the breezes are warm, you'll be grateful for that chiffon shawl, which will lend grace to your shoulders and protect your curls while you're driving to the dance. . . . These chiffon scarfs can be purchased in all black, or black with white fringe and white with red fringe.

Speaking of shawls, they're becoming more and more popular for daytime and beach wear too these days. . . . There are some in terry cloth (with and without hoods) in bright red, white and blue combinations, as well as floral printed ones with silk fringe. . . . Oh yes, and when you take a trip to the beach, you'll find nothing nicer to take along than one of those new fabricold folding cushions. . . . They come in all bright colors, are washable and comfortable, and also can be used for driving and in swings and other porch furniture.

IF YOU'RE looking for something smart in a sports or daytime hat, you'll be sure to like one of those linen or pique styles, fashioned with open crowns, large and small halo or snap brims. . . . They are being shown downtown now in white and all pastel shades. . . . You'll never find enough occasions for wearing a smart silk jersey turban—they're that popular and flattering this season. . . . The local shops are showing them in a variety of styles in soft pastel shades and white as well as in combinations of black, navy and brown with white. . . . Some turbans have been all dressed up—in black and white hair cloth, they have open crowns, frothy veils and costume clips for detail.

Have you seen the new "mad money" cases? They're clever little pouches filled with your favorite shade of nail polish, polish remover and a base coat. . . . But then that's not all, they're equipped with special little pockets in just the right size for your compact and lipstick, and have a special zipper compartment for the safe keeping of your change. . . . Made of chartreuse, red, beige and pink silk crepe, these bags are brightened with contrasting or harmonizing linings.

DON'T be stumped by an idea for a bridge prize or a birthday gift, but instead hurry right downtown and get one of those bath ensembles, which are so nice for summertime. . . . In such fragrant scents as gardenia, carnation, rose and pine, they come in practical combination packages of cooling cologne, bath balls, and bath oil—all necessary requirements for a pleasant summer.

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 6251.

Open Lovemaking In Capital

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Perhaps its just the "silly season" which cynics jest about at this time of the year, but never in the memory of the oldest D. C. resident has there been so much open and unabashed lovemaking as in the National Capital at the present time.

What's the cause of all this? Are the boys taking advantage of the situation in Europe and saying to their best girls, "Who knows, this time next year I may be dead on Flanders Field." Apparently this argument does the preliminary thawing out, for never has there been such open lovemaking in Washington D. C. They've stepped up several paces since World war No. 1.

Though we may claim several generations of forebears, born and reared in the National Capital, heretofore we've seen little lovemaking on the streets, parks, and buses of Washington, D. C. Perhaps it was all the gentlemen in bronze coats and vests looking down reproachfully from marble pedestals, or it may have been the public buildings or the awe-inspiring Washington monument. Be that as it may, Washington doesn't usually make love as frankly as Paris, London, or even New York

One sees the bride and groom spending a twenty-four hour honeymoon in the National Capital, stealthily holding hands in the Congressional library, wholly indifferent to the gorgeous frescoes which cost this country a-plenty.

Or if they're fortunate enough to have a letter from their congressman which admits them to the lower floor of the White House, we pen-pushers see them going through the marble halls, hand in hand, asking who those women are in the Green Room.

Courteously, the usher explains the women back of the red silk rope are there to attend Mrs Roosevelt's press conference. The more courageous of the newly-married crane over the red silk rope and take in the beautiful Aubusson carpet, the portraits, the crystal chandelier, the porcelain vases given by Japan to Commodore Perry. One may hear the groom whisper to the bride something like this: "All said and done, I think the Grand Hotel back home is a good deal snappier"

All the sightseeing buses seem to be loaded with lovers If it's the twilight hour her head reposes on his shoulder, if it's broad daylight, they hold hands. Going through the public parks—Lafayette, Dupont circle, Franklin Judiciary—a reticent person feels obliged to cough boisterously as the benches are approached where two-sing is going on.

Footnote to girls: "The majority of people in this country do not approve of sending soldiers overseas! With the world aflame with mass madness, we need our soldiers here, and if you want to give Jim or George the opportunity of stealing a kiss under false pretenses, well and good But I think it's a safe bet, Jim or George are not going to Europe

We may send the Allies what we are pleased to call "superfluous munitions," but as for sending soldiers, we remember what happened last time when good old Uncle Sam, later known as "Uncle Shylock," got it in the neck This time he strokes his beard and says, "Never again."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

We lost no time in giving Harry Underwood the "verdict" on his work for which he had asked. Led by my father himself, his face expressing his approbation, we all applauded heartily the job he had just finished, that of "making up" the face of Watson, already dressed in clothing of Mary's, and preparing to impersonate her in the forthcoming ruse to outwit Jack Leslie.

"Okay, Watson," Harry said when our applause slackened "Now let's see you go through your paces."

With astonishing fidelity, Watson walked across the room, turned and gestured exactly as Mary had done.

"Most satisfactory," my father said, and we all added our plaudits. Then Hary called Noel to the center of the room, and had Blake watch his every movement, as Watson had watched Mary's. Following that, he finished "making up" Blake, and then the two impersonators in Harry's phraseology, "strutted their stuff' together, while the rest of us wondered, admired, and enthusiastically approved the exhibition.

"I think we are in readiness now," my father said. "You will start in fifteen minutes. I already have given instructions to the guards to have the cars ready Now, Margaret and Lillian, if you will make the rounds and see that all in the house keep strictly to their rooms until you give them the word the coast is clear, we shall be able to get these impersonators out of here, with no one the wiser."

"Shall we come back here when we have finished our round-up?" Lillian asked, and something indefinable in her manner made me look at her with sudden attention

My father's hesitation was hardly perceptible, but I saw it, and felt a little qualm of vague uneasiness

"I hardly think it will be necessary for you to do that," he said at last. "Just go to your own rooms, when you have finished."

"Father!" I ejaculated in sudden alarm, "You're not going out there! You said you weren't, but—"

"Nor am I, Daughter," he said, and there was infinite sadness in his voice. "My place is there, but unfortunately my physical condition is such that I would only hamper my men instead of helping them. So I shall stay here. I hate to hurry you, but—I must remind you that time presses."

"We'll go this second," I said, and hurried out with Lillian in my wake. Outside in the hall, we divided our prospective calls, I taking Edith Fairfax and Katie, while Lillian was to notify my mother-in-law, Katherine, in the nursery and our royal refugees, all on the second floor

"Meet me in the library as soon as you've finished," Lillian whispered as we parted, and again I sensed something vaguely disturbing in her manner.

I found Miss Whitlock sitting outside my door which I had given up to Edith temporarily.

"Asleep," she said softly, and I gave her my father's message that everyone was to keep inside the rooms.

"I'll go back immediately," she said, and then hesitated oddly

"I know you're tremendously busy now," she said, "but could you see me sometime later in the day? There's something concerning Miss Fairfax about which I wish to ask you"

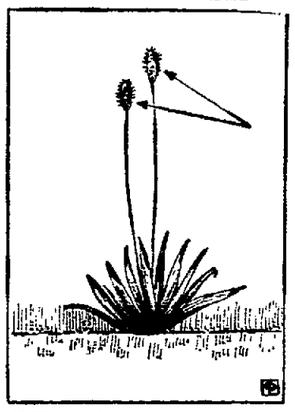
Garden Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY



"Fifth Columns" In the Lawn.

Again and again, just when the home gardener comes to the conclusion that at least he has achieved a perfect, weedless lawn, the "fifth column" appears and trouble ensues. The fifth column of the home lawn is the spindly stem of the buckhorn, or narrow leaf plantain, a weed that persists in sowing "seeds of dissension" among the best of grasses.

Among the ways of controlling this weed are: pulling it up by hand after the ground has been softened by rain: cutting the main root of the plant well below the surface of the soil, and piercing each plant to the root with a sharp-pointed stick which has been dipped in sulphuric acid, carbolic acid, or gasoline.

As shown in today's Garden-Graph, the seed heads of buckhorn are atop long, spindly stems. It is a mistake to cut these stems with a lawn mower, for the blades of the mower merely strip the seeds from the stem and scatter them throughout the lawn.

When hand digging weeds from lawns, mark off strips about three feet wide with string and stakes. Then clear each strip of weeds before moving on to the next one.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, June 27.

ALTHOUGH, according to the lunar transits, this may be a day of the liveliest of activities, with many bright spots and thrilling engagements, yet there are a few rather adverse symbols, calling for wary, circumspect and generally judicious conduct. Employers, superiors or others having authority may not be too friendly or approachable. Put your best foot forward with these, especially if you have some big and laudable proposition calling for joint or group action. Enmity, jealousy and discord may prevail in business and private relations Be diplomatic. Short journeys, writings, publicity, all youthful enterprises thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and interesting year, with possible minor changes, travel, or "new deals" definitely to the advantage, although such propitious denouements may be the result of vigorous and determined personal endeavor, as employers, superiors and others whose influence may be desirable may be found wanting However, expansive and sound projects for the public good or for specific group welfare may have their appeal. In all contacts there is need for tact, finesse, amiability, in order to break down possible jealousy, enmity or friction. Gay youthful procedures flourish.

A child born on this day may be extremely versatile, brilliant, quick-thinking and swift-acting, with excellent business and intellectual talents, bespeaking for it major success despite opposition from high places.

EXPENSIVE SOUP.

As much as $30 a pound is paid by wealthy Chinese for the small nests of a certain type of swift, from which is made a prized soup called bird's nest soup. The edible nests are essentially the mucous secreted by the bird's salivary glands. Value of the nests depends on the color and purity. Newly built nests, being whiter, are the choicest grade About 50 nests weigh one pound

"The Authority on Authorities"

GET THAT RE-ENTRY OUT

If you were on the defensive and saw in dummy an ace which could be used as a re-entry for an almost established suit, wouldn't you like to knock it out at once if you could? Wouldn't you hope that thereby you could kill the entire long cards of the suit, thereby depriving declarer of all those tricks? Then why not use the same tactics if you are declarer" When one of your opponents has a suit that threatens your No Trump game, your best move is often to knock out as early as possible the only card of entry he could possibly have in another suit.

	♠ K Q 9 5 ♥ Q 7 6 ♦ 8 7 6 ♣ A J 3
♠ J 10 6 ♥ K 10 9 8 5 3 2 ♦ 2 ♣ 7 6	N. W. E. S.	♠ 7 3 2 ♥ None ♦ A 9 5 4 3 ♣ Q 10 9 8 4

(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♦	1 ♥	1 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

In an 11-table tournament, there were three at which West bid his suit and against the No. Trump game led his club 7. Let's follow the play at all three of these tables In one case the declarer won the lead with the club K, went to dummy with the spade Q, tried hearts, losing the J finesse to the K, played dummy's club J on the return, losing to the Q, then took the third club with the A. He then ran his four spades and two hearts, but when he lost a diamond to the A, East set him with club tricks.

At the second table, South let East win the first club and took the second, then entered dummy with a spade and lost the heart finesse. West, having no more clubs, led his diamond singleton to East. A club return found the suit still stopped, so declarer made an overtrick.

At the third table, declarer won the first club and promptly led a diamond to the A. He won the club return, cashed three diamonds, four spades, lost a heart to West, then got two more hearts on the return, making two overtricks because he read the lead as hitting East's suit, and so knocked out the only entry East could possibly have.

Ford Refuses to Build Airplanes for Great Britain

UNITED STATES SEEKS ANOTHER MANUFACTURER

Order For 9,000 Rolls Royce Engines Turned Down by Auto Magnate.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt's advisory defense commission sought another manufacturer today to build thousands of Rolls Royce airplane engines for this country and Great Britain after collapse of negotiations with Henry Ford.

William S. Knudsen, production coordinator of the commission, announced that plans for production of the motors by Ford had been cancelled because of Henry Ford's refusal to manufacture the motors for Great Britain as well as the United States. Ford has consistently held that he would manufacture implements of war for this country only.

Arrangements had been under way for Ford to manufacture 3,000 engines for this country and 6,000 for Great Britain Knudsen said that the combined quantity was sufficient to justify the undertaking, indicating that the cost of producing only this country's needs would be too expensive. He said that "cooperation in the production of this important military equipment will be sought elsewhere."

Airplane engine production has been considered a serious bottleneck in the air expansion program. Ford's earlier decision to manufacture the engines had been looked upon as a probable solution of that bottleneck.

While the defense commission searched for another manufacturer, other defense developments included:

1. Preparations by the army and navy to speed supplies of young officers. Naval stations and recruiting offices begin receiving applicants Friday to inaugurate a plan to train 5,000 naval reserve officers annually. The army already is seeking 9 000 new reserve officers to meet its expanded needs.

2. President Roosevelt prepared to sign three big national defense bills passed by congress last week —the $1,768,913,908 supplemental defense bill, the bill providing for speeding up naval shipbuilding by removing competitive bidding and advancing 30 per cent down payment on contracts, and one making similar concessions to army contractors.

3. The navy awaited the signing of the supplemental defense bill to award $750,000,000 of contracts for 68 more warships. During the last two weeks it has awarded contracts for 19 fighting ships and four auxiliaries totaling $367.000.000.

Complete Plans For Mansfield's Fireworks Show

Members of the Public Parks association will meet tonight at North Lark Park pavilion to complete plans for the third annual Fourth of July celebration at the Fairgrounds a week from tomorrow.

An afternoon and evening of free entertainment will be climaxed with a spectacular display of fireworks, according to Edward Wylie, program chairman.

Mayor W. J. Locke will open the day's celebration at 2:30 p. m. There will be bicycle races, a "bike" parade and a baby buggy parade, with cash prizes awaited the winners.

Late in the afternoon the Madge Kinsey Players will stage a vaudeville show, and at 7 p. m. the Friendly House boxing bouts are scheduled. Boys from Crestline, Loudonville and Mansfield will compete in the bouts.

An hour's entertainment from 8.15 to 9:15 p. m. will be sponsored by the American Legion, and will be made up of local talent The Legion drum corps will participate.

The fireworks display, will appropriate music by the high school band, will top the day's program.

Boy Spurns Ride With Dad, Killed by Truck

An elephant never forgets and neither does George C. Kyle. The Third Ward legislator, who backed a move to change the name of Cline avenue to Millsborough road last year, reminded councilmen of the fact last night when they okayed changes in the names of five streets, one of them to Taylor road. Kyle asserted that if one street could be changed to a road he didn't see why a road couldn't be extended to include an avenue.

Yesterday was a gala day in the lives of 25 girls between the ages of 12 and 18 who were taken to Lake Erie for an outing by their Friendly House supervisors, Mrs. Russel Gimbel and Mrs. Erma Augustine, assisted by Mrs. Paul Thrush and Mrs. George Imbrock. For some of the girls it was one of their few trips out of the city. They picnicked at Ruggles Beach and later drove over to view Bay bridge on Sandusky bay. Looking across the broad sheet of water, her eyes filled with wonder, the youngest of the party inquired awesomely, "Is that another country over there?"

When James McDonald, a transient was brought into municipal court this morning on a charge of panhandling at the Pennsylvania station, he got a dure. He pleaded innocent and dure He pleaded innocnet and attempted to prove his plea Given a fine of $10 and costs to be worked out in city jail, he demanded of the court "How can you find me guilty when I've pleaded not guilty? It don't make sense. I want to be taken into court and tried." And Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch inquired dryly: "Where do you think you are?" McDonald was taken to the city bastile still protesting that "it didn't make sense to sentence a man who had pleaded not guilty."

A picture of herself with Jack Dempsey and a note from the former heavyweight champion are prized souvenirs of Miss Edna Blair, Mansfield stenographer, who returned recently from New York. While she was visiting in the big city, Miss Blair's escort took her to Dempsey's famous restaurant where a friend snapped her picture with Dempsey. After she returned to Mansfield Miss Blair received the picture from Dempsey along with a note of greeting.

Rubber Workers Accept Pact With General Tire Co.

AKRON—(U.P.)—A strike of 1,300 employes of the General Tire and Rubber company that has been in progress since April 8 ended today with ratification by the United Rubber Workers Union local No. 9 (CIO) of a settlement plan.

Basis for the settlement was negotiated by Monsignor Francis J. Hass as a special mediator who conducted negotiations between the company and the union over a two-week period.

Announcement of an agreement between the disputants was made in Washington by John R. Steelman, director of the U. S. conciliation service.

Robinson of the state welfare department. In a speech before the annual convention of the Ohio State Federation of Colored Women's clubs, Robinson asserted the charges were "true in part."

CONVENTION CAN BE LOT OF FUN, GIRL WRITER LEARNS

By DUBARRY CAMPAU
Central Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA—It's scandalous that anything as important as a national political convention should turn out to be such fun. Here's the fate of the nation practically waving in the breeze and yet it's hard to remember to be solemn and grim when all around you bands are playing, men are greeting each other like old college chums and at least four or five of them to be the next president of the United States.

DuBarry Campau

Nevertheless, a get-together of this sort has its serious side. There's the problem of getting a taxi, for instance. The entrance to every hotel is jammed with sight-seers and they refuse to make room for you unless you look important.

Oh, for a Taxi!

Getting a taxi is well worth while, however, for the drivers are darlings.

The one we had this morning didn't charge us a cent extra to go all the way to the convention hall behind three elephants who walked very slowly and wore signs on their sides saying they hoped everyone would vote for Gannett.

Once you get to the convention hall it doesn't much matter how you're dressed because there are too many persons there to give anyone a chance to be outstandingly smart but dark glasses are a necessity. Flood lights pop out at you from every direction, apparently for the benefit of the photographers, who virtually took over the first session.

It seems that the first lesson you learn in politics is that you are the servant, not of the people, but of the men behind the cameras. They not only wander at large throughout the hall, snapping anyone who catches their fancy, but there are two special balconies built out from the gallery for them—one for the newsreelmen and one for the regular photographers.

TURKEY SIGNS IRAQ TREATY

Defense Agreement Concluded With Great Britain.

LONDON—(AP)—An agreement between Turkey and Iraq for the joint defense of Iraq and French-mandated Syria in collaboration with Great Britain was concluded today at Ankara, exchange telegraph (British news agency) reported today in a dispatch from Istanbul.

Since France surrendered to the Axis powers both Iraq, which maintains close treaty relations with Britain, and Turkey, which had mutual assistance pacts with France and Britain, have shown increasing anxiety lest Syria become a battleground.

SENTIMENTAL

Creel Says Free Speech Stand Becomes Idiotic.

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—George Creel, the government's World war propaganda chief, believes "we Americans have sentimentalized about free speech, free assemblage and free press to the point of criminal idiocy."

"If the individual is protected against libel, slander, obscenities, etc., why is it Fascistic for the government to protect itself against treason?" Creel asked in an address last night.

END STRIKE

MOUNT VERNON—(AP)—Approximately 290 employes returned to work at the Timken Roller Bearing Co. plant here today, ending a three-day strike called by the CIO Steel Workers' Organizing Committee over grievance procedure.

NEW STATION

Postoffice Branch Ordered at Orange and Central.

Extending its branches to a fourth outlying part of the city, the Mansfield postoffice will open a new substation July 1 at the corner of Orange street and Central avenue, Postmaster Herman Homberger revealed today.

A newly erected brick building at the street intersection will house the new substation which is to be in charge of Frank Mitsch, jr. The branch will be located in a confectionary and drug store.

Homberger explained that the substation, operating in addition to the three others already established in other parts of the city, will be known as "No. 4."

ORDERS HIRING OF 2 FIREMEN

Council Approves Fund to Provide Department With Summer Vacations.

As predicted, city council last night cleared up the problem of vacations for firemen by authorizing employment of two temporary firemen for a two-month period.

The legislators put their unanimous approval on a bill appropriating 440 to meet the expense.

Mayor William J. Locke pointed out that the addition of two men for a two-month period would allow all members of the fire department to take their vacations before the end of the year.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger had asked for four men to "fill in" during vacations and had threatened to close No. 4 station so firemen could take their time off during a four-month period.

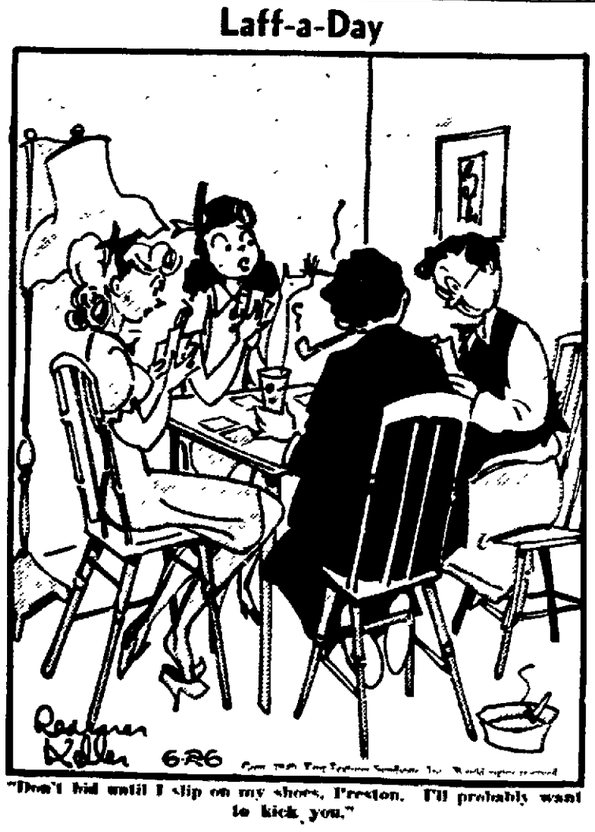
City officials, however, ordered the vacations extended through December and asked the council to add two men for two months.

In addition, council aslo transferred $100 to purchase 1,000 bicycle licenses. The license law became effective last week but no funds had been provided for purchase of the tags.

A $325 transfer was made in recreation funds to provide funds for baseball umpires and pay salaries of a few supervisors employed this summer in a curtailed playground program.

The health department was granted a $120 transfer for clerk salary and $50 was transferred in park department funds.

Laff-a-Day



"Don't bid until I slip on my shoes, Preston. I'll probably want to kick you."

ASHLAND YOUTH DIES, FRIEND HURT IN MISHAP

Pair Riding Bicycle Struck While Returning Home From Strawberry Picking.

ASHLAND—A 14-year-old Savannah boy was dead today because he turned down an automobile ride with his father to earn some money picking strawberries.

Killed instantly when the bicycle he was riding with a companion was struck yesterday afternoon by a lumber truck on route 58 north of Ashland was Leo Meininger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Meininger who live east of Savannah.

The Meininger boy's companion, Ned Kelley, 11, of Savannah was seriously injured, but he is expected to recover. He is in Samaritan hospital, Ashland, where it was said he received a concussion when thrown off the bicycle.

The Meininger youth's parents said he had been offered a ride home from the berry patch with the father, but he preferred to stay a little longer so that as a regular picker he could collect an additional half cent per quart for the berries he picked.

Drives Into Fence.

Harry Plank, 23, of Polk, driver of the truck, said he blew the horn as he approached the boys on the bicycle, but they apparently became confused and steered their bike into the path of the truck. Plank drove his truck into a guard rail in a vain attempt to prevent the accident, authorities were told. Plank is a driver for the C. S. Garretson Lumber company, Ashland.

The boy's death was the eighth of the year in traffic in Ashland county and the second in the past week. His death resulted from a skull fracture.

Born in North Dakota, the Meininger boy came to Ashland county with his parents about eight months ago. He was in the eighth grade at the Savannah schools. His father is a farmer.

Surviving are the parents; four brothers, Frank of Mansfield, Nick, jr., John, and Marvin at home, and six sisters, Mrs. Mary Wallary of Ashland, Mrs. Bus Hyamas of Tulsa, Okla., Mrs. Kathryn Whittey of Billings, Mont., and Lena, Helen, and Irma at home.

Funeral services will be held in Ashland Thursday morning with Rev. William E. Rooney, pastor of St. Edwards Catholic church, officiating. Burial will be in the Ashland cemetery.

ISSUES REPORT

State Says 237 Claims for Compensation Filed.

One Richland county industrial worker was fatally injured and 237 filed injury claims with the Ohio Industrial commission in May, the commission's division of safety and hygiene reported today.

Four of the Richland claims sought compensation for permanent partial disability, while 27 reported over seven days lost time, and 16 were for seven days or less of lost time.

There were 189 injury cases requiring medical treatment only and the total time lost as the result of injuries was 8,347 days.

In the state, 81 injury claims were filed as against 99 in April. The number of workers' injury and occupational disease claims, however, increased 988 to 16,259 in May.

Federal Official Waits Word From Superiors.

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—James H. Cleveland, special assistant U. S. district attorney, said today he would consult with his superiors in Washington before answering a $50,000 libel suit fled against him by Stewart S. Cooper, Cincinnati attorney, who was acquitted in the Arlington cemetery promotion trial.

Cooper alleged that Cleveland injured him professionally and socially by his remarks in connection with the Arlington case.

Cooper was tried under an indictment which charged him with mail fraud and conspiracy.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Broadway Bulletin Board.

The Norma Shearer-George Raft romance is 50 per cent cool. The reason is Marlene Dietrich! . . . Martha Raye and Don Budge no longer think love is just a tennis term. She calls him "my racket." . . . The Jack Oakies (Venita Varden) are on the verge of calling it off again. . . .

William Morton, the lad who kept sending Betty Grable flowers when she was in 'DuBarry," and who followed her to the coast—on the same train—isn't getting to first base. . . . Elaine Barrie tells friends she'll return to New York soon—alone. . . . The Frankie ("Brother Rat") Albertsons are knitting tiny garments.

Constance Bennett and the handsome young advertising executive just aired by Anita Colby are yum, yum. . . . Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, gives his fabulous team only an "outside chance" of winning the pennant.

Most of Jock Whitney's friends agree he'll marry Louise Macy, the fashion editor, but the dark horse still in the running is Rhoda Cameron (Mrs John Belfour) Clark. . . . The Scottish Black Watch, crack Canadian regiment, leaves for Britain July 2 or 3—half the officers are betrothed to New York girls. . . .

Will Rogers, Jr., is in town pursuing Eleanor Harris, the pretty cinema author, but it's Jerry Lewis, the writer, who's catching up to her. . . . Ann Graham, who inherited Geraldine Spreckles' stage role, also has inherited her wealthy beau.

The Hurricane electric signs were out over the week-end because of sabotage. Some one cut the electric wires.

Coincidence Dept: Ilona Massey, the blonde from Budapest, didn't renew her option on M. G. M. producer Sam Katz's heart, and M. G. M won't renew its option on her . . . Barbara Lunn, the model, and Tommy Fink, ex-husband of the late Charlotte (Mrs. Harry) Ritz, are now Mr. and Mrs. . . .

The United States, within nine months, will have a super pursuit ship, a twin-motored plane, with a maximum diving speed of 600 miles an hour (regular speed 480 miles an hour), carrying seven machine guns and a rack of new light bombs which weigh only 80 lbs. apiece. It's now under construction in California. . . .

Jimmy Lind, the Giants' pitcher, and Betty Lind, the show girl, aren't related—but they're liable to be. . . . One of the town's better known comedians was so intoxicated the other evening he couldn't rehearse, and it was a toss-up which was more angry with him—his sweetheart or his wife!

Talk Around Town.

Jack Dempsey and Hannah Williams are wrangling bitterly over custody of the children and the amount of the money settlement—which is why she hasn't started for Reno or Florida yet. . . .

Betty Allen's newest heart-throb is Harry Armitage, the Wisconsin lumber king. She shelved her comedian beau when he told Stork Clubbers they were going to get married, and all her other boy friends stopped calling her up! . . . Phonovision, the new nickle-in-th-slot movie idea, will have its own newsreel stuff. . . .

The "Meredith Anderson," who wrote that grand short story, "A Letter to Edith," in the current Good Housekeeping, is Faith Baldwin, the famous fictioneer. . . .

The Broadway squad is hunting for a tall slim blond wolf who's been annoying the chorine Red Riding Hoods as they leave the stage door alleys.

You can still bet the Sonja Henie-Dan Topping excitement won't get as far as the altar. . . . Col. Gonzales Gomez, the Latin Tommy Manville, is on the verge of forming an enterprising corporation. . . .

Cecil Hays, the Fanny Farmer candy heiress, and George Higgins, the Princeton lad, are tra, la. . . . Glenn Miller, the No. 1 bandsman, is asking $100,000 to debut in films. The Stuka bomber, now Germany's greatest weapon, was designed by a Canadian in Canada!

The "patching up" of Helen Parrish's broken engagement to Forrest Tucker is just a publicity stunt for her new picture. . . . Hal Kemp won't be in town when Martha's papoose arrives July 7th.

One of the local law enforcement agencies is dizzy trying to figure out what to do with one of its officers, who has gone berserk. The other day he went to Washington and tried to arrest Postmaster-General Farley — who, of course, wasn't wanted But they're afraid to fire the fellow, because he might reveal all the carefully-guarded secrets of the crime-busting office.

Arline Black, ex-wife of Meastro Ted Black, will waltz down the aisle with James E. Henretta, wealthy Pennsylvanian, on June 29. . . . The Ronald Regans (Jane Wyman) are lullabying. . . .

Evelyn Law, once Ziegfeld's prize dancer, (the one with her foot in the air, remember?) is now a story reader for McFadden magazines. . . . Joan Achelis, one of the more pert debs, and James Black, of the Blue Book, have softening of the hearteries. . . .

One of the local Romeos, who visits night clubs with well-known debutantes (so he won't be thrown out), and talks about his "movie contract,' is handing out nothing but bouncing checks. The Stork and Versailles both want to see him rhumba in just one more time. . . .

Larry Fisher, of Fisher bodies, and Dorothy Claire, a Hollywood beauty, are swooning.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

(Second of Three Stories on Hollywood Extras)

By VERNON HOAGLAND
(Pinch-hitting for Robbin Coons)

HOLLYWOOD—A dark, slender young woman with a pretty, piquant face and a pointed chin sits near a telephone all day.

She knits, or reads or straightens the apartment, but always she remains within earshot of that telephone. Every hour or so she goes to it and dials Garfield 3711. She gives her name, asks one question, and gets one answer—usually negative.

She is an extra. In this case she is, Virginia Lee Corbin, once a juvenile star.

The telephone seldom rings, and only once a month or so does it ring with the news she wants to hear—"this is Central Casting—you are wanted for a picture."

So, impatient at the silent telephone, Miss Corbin and 7,000 other extras dial GA 3711—Central Casting—many times a day, to give their name in the hope that just at that moment a casting director might be needing an extra with her particular qualifications.

"If you happen to call in at the right moment," Virginia says, "you have a good chance. And if you aren't at your telephone when Casting calls, there are a dozen others waiting."

Howard R. Philbrick, central casting chief says the volume of calls is so heavy that Garfield 3711 is an entire exchange by itself

Central Casting's PBX board, he says, is the busiest in the world. Peak hours are in the late afternoon, with as many as 3,800 calls an hour.

"I think Mr. Philbrick can do the industry a lot of good with his reform measures," said Miss Corbin. "Certainly there are too many people in the profession who do not belong in it.

"You might call me the typical extra, though I came in from a slightly different direction. I was a child star in the silents and made a couple of pictures as the talkies came in before getting married at 16.

"I was making $750 a week then. But the marriage ended in divorce, and now I have to support my two children alone.

"In those days child actors didn't have the income protection and easy hours that they have today. It has been tough going. This dress job on 'The Howards of Virginia,' at $16.50 is the first call I've had in weeks.

"For myself, I have no regrets. I'd do it all over again with little hope of ever again becoming a star. But my advice to Susie Jones of Keokuk would be: Stay home. Don't ever try to become a movie extra."
